U.S. DOWING TO FRENCH DICTATION

European Observers Declare That France Is Forcing Up Discount Rates

WALL STREET FAST BECOMING ANNOYED

By NEALEY PARSON
(Copyright, 1931, by The Chicago Daily News Foreign Service)
LONDON, Oct. 21.—By reversal of her cheap money policy, "exactly at the moment when President Hoover had determined upon an experiment of the expansionist order," America has bowed to French dictation, asserts The Manchester Guardian today.
"The plain fact is that the reversal of the cheap money policy of the Federal Reserve authorities has been accomplished in two stages at a moment when high officials of the Bank of France were, in the first case, crossing the Atlantic, and, in the second case, consulting with high officials of the Federal Reserve system. This new dear money policy of the United States is applauded in France and particularly by those in close touch with the Bank of France as a return to sanity."

TO SATISFY PARIS
"Something more than a 2 per cent advance in the rediscount rate, with corresponding rises in market bill rates, is said to have been undertaken for the satisfaction of French bankers. . . . It is even said that a further rise in the rediscount rate has been promised. These undertakings are said to have been obtained by Charles Farnier, vice-governor, and Robert Lacour-Gayet, director of funds of the Bank of France, in the course of their first discussions with the Federal Reserve bankers. . . . The United States Credit Corporation is to begin operations this week with a capital of $500,000,000 for assisting banks to realize assets that are sound but which at the present moment are unrealizable for technical reasons."

GIANT FREIGHT PLANE ARRIVES

Built in Germany, Big Machine Will Operate in Hudson Bay Region

MONTREAL, Oct. 21.—One of the largest airplanes ever brought to Canada has been taken from the hold of the Beaverbird, and the parts were conveyed to Canadian Junkers Limited service station preparatory to being assembled for use in the Hudson Bay region. The giant German plane, the first of its kind to reach this country, has an overall length of 62 feet, a span of 95 feet, and a height of 15 feet. She will be used by Canadian Airways as a freighter. She will be able to fly a distance of 500 miles with a cargo of 5,000 pounds, at an average cruising speed of 100 miles an hour.

Only two men will be needed to fly the freighter, but if it is decided to take passengers instead of cargo she could carry a total of thirty-four persons.

Storm Strikes City; Havoc Is Caused by Fires and High Wind

Vessels Seek Shelter as Gale Sweeps Coast—Twelve Fire Alarms Turned In—Boats Adrift as Waves Lash Coastline

SWEEPED by a sixty-mile-an-hour gale, Victoria and district suffered considerable damage last night, while the city fire department was kept so busy answering fire alarms at one period of the night that there was fear of a lack of equipment.

Twelve alarms were turned in within a short period, most of them being for chimney fires. So harassed was the fire department by outbreaks that it was impossible to send anyone to a beach fire at Clover Point, where flames threatened to destroy a woodwork retaining wall.

Small craft were forced into shelter and deep-sea liners were held up by the strong southwest gale. Storm warnings were posted all along the coast from as far north as Etchemun to as far south as North Head, off the Columbia River.

BOATS BREAK MOORINGS
Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt municipalities reported considerable damage. In Saanich and Esquimalt most of the damage was to trees. Many boughs were reported blown down. Oak Bay police reported light wires blown down on Wilmut Place and Orchard Avenue. Three pleasure boats broke from their moorings at the Oak Bay boathouse and were washed up on shore. A part of the landing float was torn loose by the force of the waves and also was washed ashore.

MARINE DRIVE AWASH

Fifty Killed By Tidal Wave In South Seas

LONDON, Oct. 21 (CP).—The Office of the Colonial Secretary was informed today fifty lives had been lost in the destruction of eighteen native villages on the island of Cristobal, in the Western Pacific, when a tidal wave swept the settlements following an earthquake.

The earthquake, which was severe, occurred in the central and eastern areas of the British Solomon Islands, a report from the High Commissioner of the Western Pacific stated.

The damage was not serious in the central group. The disturbance was thought to have had its origin in the vicinity of Rennell Island, one of the southernmost of the group.

LINDBERGH TO TAKE OFF AT DAYBREAK

Ship Due Here Early This Morning—Plane Awaits Flying Couple

WEATHER MAY CAUSE ALTERATION OF PLANS

Fighting strong winds and high seas, the American Mail Line S.S. President Jefferson, with Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh aboard, was making good time late last night, and was due to arrive off William Head at 3 o'clock this morning, according to wireless advice received at the local office of the steamship company.

The Jefferson was not to go right into the station, but was to be met outside by quarantine and immigration officials and pratique extraded as quickly as possible. This, it was expected, would enable the ship to dock at Rihet Pier within an hour of arriving at quarantine.

ARRANGEMENTS NOT KNOWN
Just what effect the storm, if it continues, will have on the arrangements made for the transfer of Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh from the transatlantic liner to the transcontinental airplane awaiting their arrival at the Lansdowne Road field is not known. Officials of the American Mail Line reached Victoria from Seattle yesterday, looked over the taking-off place, and will be on hand to assist the distinguished guests of the company to depart on their air journey without delay.

AWAITING ORDERS
Pilot of the Breeze, California aviator, the big Lockheed airplane returned to Lansdowne Road field at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. When last evening, West Breeze stated that the plane was at the disposal of Colonel Lindbergh on his arrival here, and that he had reached the city nothing definite concerning the time of take-off or the route to be taken on leaving Victoria would be known, and probably not then.

TROOPS COMPEL COW TESTING

National Guard Mobilized When Iowa Farmers Resist Regulations

BURLINGTON, Ia., Oct. 21.—Determined opposition to the state testing of cattle for tuberculosis, which has been almost continuous since March, tonight broke into a new series in Southeastern Iowa.

The farm of Jake Everstam, just north of here, became the camp ground of a group of men, women and children estimated to number between five hundred and a thousand, who gathered avowedly to resist indefinitely further testing of cattle by state veterinarians.

Many of the protesting farmers talked about their leader before dawn. Determined and grim, they indicated they would resist to open fighting to gain their end.

ARMED CAMPS
In the troop camp five miles away from the scene of the demonstration in three other counties prepared for the arrival late today of reinforcements of 150 cavalrymen from Iowa City, Des Moines and Washington, D.C.

In addition, 1,300 other National Guardsmen were ordered mobilized by Adj.-Gen. W. H. Boney after it became apparent that previous rebellions would be repeated in Des Moines County.

Brig.-Gen. Park A. Findley, commander of the guard, said no testing would be attempted until after arrival of reinforcements. This was taken to mean late tonight or Friday. In the New York district herds belonging to nonbelievers have been inoculated in this area.

Red-Berried Holly From Province Much in Demand

Five hundred tons of holly, mostly from Vancouver Island points, and several times that weight of Christmas trees, will be shipped out of the province to Eastern Canada and points in the United States during the next six weeks. Yesterday, with its seasonable touch of cold, brought sharp reminders of arrangements for the festive season, the commercial end of which annually brings a tidy volume of business to producers in British Columbia.

Upward of 1,500 tons of rich red-berried holly, largely from farms in the Saanich Peninsula, will be on their way soon to points in Eastern Canada, the Eastern States and California. New York is a live market for the product, while Los Angeles and San Francisco each year are ordering larger supplies from this island.

THOS. EDISON LAID TO REST

Simple and Brief Ceremony Marks Funeral of World's Greatest Inventor

WEST ORANGE, N.J., Oct. 21.—Thomas A. Edison lay tonight in the shadow of a simple grave in the shadow of a great oak tree in Rose-dale Cemetery. His burial marked the fifty-second anniversary of the inventor's birth. The ceremony was a simple one, and the distinguished guests of the company to depart on their air journey without delay.

Surrounding him were the friends and flowers he loved.

Listening in a room upstairs, to which the ceremony came by concealed amplifiers, were his wife, his children and his grandchildren. Henry Ford and Harvey Firestone, Mrs. Herbert Hoover and a very few close friends.

EXPRESS OF RESPECT
The grief and respect of the nation was left to be expressed in an organized plan sponsored by President Hoover for extinguishing for one minute at 10 p.m. (E.S.T.), the billions of incandescent electric lamps which light its way because of Mr. Edison's genius.

Mourners at home came under the influence of an organ played "I'll Take You Home Again, Kathleen."

Simply marked the rites Arthur L. Walsh, old friend and business associate, played "Little Gray Horse in the West" on the violin. It and "Kathleen" were the inventor's favorites and were among the first mourners at the funeral on the phonograph he created.

PASTOR READS PSALM
Then there was music from Bach and Beethoven. He loved that, too. The Rev. Stephen J. Herben, former pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Orange, read the 23rd Psalm, "The Lord is My Shepherd."

He quoted "I am the Resurrection and the Life: he that believeth in Me, though he die, yet shall he live."

The body was borne to the cemetery. There awaited a freshly-dug grave. Evening shadows enveloped the mourners as the body descended into the grave. Members of the family, Mr. and Mrs. Ford and Mrs. Firestone, dropped white petals on the casket as it was lowered.

The coffin went gently down into the earth. The sun sank in the west.

USE OF TELEGRAPH WIRE BY NATIVES DISRUPTS SERVICE

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony, East Africa, Oct. 21 (AP).—Telegraph wire in varying lengths, attached here and there to otherwise scanty clothing, means chic to the natives of Tanganyika and Kenya, and as a result the capital was without wire service to the coast for more than twenty-four hours.

The demand for wire for sartorial purposes exceeded the available noncommercial supply, so the natives cut telegraph lines about twenty-four miles from Mombassa and took what they wanted.

Cable messages had to be sent to Mombassa, and thence by train, until the damage was repaired. The delay was sixteen hours.

FLOODS IN INDIA CLAIM 150 LIVES

CALCUTTA, Oct. 21 (AP).—At least 150 persons were drowned today and 21,000 made homeless by floods which reached a depth of thirty feet in the Vistagram area of India. About 90 per cent of the cattle in the area were drowned and considerable damage done to the rice crop.

COURT CLERK IS ARRESTED

Earl Robinson, Vancouver Police Official, Surrenders on Theft Charge

VANCOUVER, Oct. 21.—Earl E. Robinson, J.P., suspended police court clerk, surrendered himself to city police this afternoon on a charge of theft from the City of Vancouver.
"Mr. Robinson will plead not guilty to the charge and will ask for an immediate trial," said Gordon E. Warner, Robinson's counsel, following Robinson's release on $7,500 bail. "He feels he has nothing to fear and wishes to get the thing over with as soon as possible."

He said Mr. Robinson had gone to the police headquarters and surrendered himself as soon as he heard the warrant was out. Although the warrant merely charges Robinson with theft of over $10, Oscar Orr, assistant city prosecutor, from whose office the warrant came, stated tonight that it covered approximately $14,500, alleged to have been taken from the city's court funds over a period of more than fourteen years, from January 1, 1916, to May 1, 1931.

Robinson will appear tomorrow in city police court, the court in which for seventeen years, as an employee of the city, he officiated as clerk. He will probably be remanded for a week on his arraignment and the case will not likely come to trial until the inquiry being conducted into the court clerk's office is finished. Whether the inquiry, which adjourned Tuesday for an indefinite period, will resume Friday will probably be announced tomorrow by Walter Wardhaugh, deputy city comptroller, whose return is then expected from Victoria, where he went Tuesday night to confer with Attorney-General R. H. Pooley regarding co-operation with Ottawa officials in furthering the probe.

According to the precedent which would thus be established, it is pointed out that, if Germany suddenly occupied the Baltic corridor, France recaptured the Rhine-land, the League's solution, in co-operation with the United States, would be to tell the Poles to get out, and the Germans in the other, that they must keep quiet under provocation and accept negotiations with the aggressor on the aggressor's terms.

In other quarters it is thought that the sense of Washington's alleged suggestions has been misunderstood. The Poles are standing by easily be cleared within the next twenty-four hours.

Surprise in Wall St. As Bank of England Starts Retiring Loan

U.S. Bankers Believed That London Needed Further Credit but $100,000,000 of Accommodation Already Paid

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (CP).—The New York Herald-Tribune today says the Bank of England has repaid most of the $125,000,000 ninety-day credit it obtained from the United States Federal Reserve system on August 1.

It was revealed yesterday, says the newspaper in a major front page story, that the bank had been able to retire almost $100,000,000 of its credit in this market.

The Herald-Tribune says further, in part:
News of the retirement of four-fifths of the August credit, which matures on October 31, evoked considerable surprise and speculation here. It was regarded as a foregone conclusion that the Federal Reserve advance, while nominally due last week, was actually "frozen" for some time to come.

GOOD SIGN
Thus, by repayment of the major portion of its credit for the Federal Reserve, the Bank of England has lowered substantially its foreign liabilities, thereby removing some of the obstacles which might be considered as standing in the way of an early stabilization of sterling exchange, and simultaneously the liquidity of the of the Federal Reserve system has been increased a corresponding amount.

The fact of the repayment of about $100,000,000 of the Bank of England credit is disclosed in the current issue of The Federal Reserve Bulletin, released for publication today by the Federal Reserve Board. While the system does not make the definite statement that the British bank of issue has not anticipated the maturity of the $125,000,000 credit, it reveals clearly enough what has taken place by stating that its holdings of "bills payable in foreign currencies" have been reduced $96,411,000.

LOOKED FOR DELAY
Wall Street believed, when the Bank of England suspended free gold payments on September 21, that the Federal Reserve would have to renew its credit to the British bank of issue on October 31 for another ninety days, adding that further renewals thereafter might be necessary until the British Government had mobilized the foreign resources of its nationalities.

Plan Control of Platinum Supply

LONDON, Oct. 21 (CP).—An agreement was announced tonight between the world's principal producers of platinum, aiming at regulation of prices. In order to facilitate co-operation in carrying out the agreement, a British company called Consolidated Platinum has been formed to control the bulk of the world output.

COMMISSION IS GIVEN CREDIT

Able Work of Veterans' Committee Is Praised by Hon. Joshua Hinchliffe

Able work on the part of the voluntary commission which administers the educational allowances granted by the Province to children of ex-service men who left British Columbia to join the colors in the late war was the subject of warm commendation yesterday by Hon. Joshua Hinchliffe, Minister of Education.

"This commission is composed of representatives of the provincial commands of the Canadian Legion, the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, and the British Columbia branch of the Amputees Association of Canada, with Dr. S. J. Willis, superintendent of education, in the chair. Lieut.-Col. W. S. Buell, Capt. C. F. L. Money and J. A. Berry are the representatives of the service organizations on the commission, which is a voluntary body. Members of the commission have given generously of their time to carry on the work of the scheme, and are deserving of great credit for the able and impartial manner in which they have performed their duties," Mr. Hinchliffe stated.

The entire scheme, under which $15,000 was distributed in small monthly allowances to 131 children this year to assist their education in the high school years, is without cost of administration, save only postage and stationery. Even the secretarial duties of the commission are conducted voluntarily, Miss Jessie Alexander, a member of the staff of the Department of Education, absorbing this work on top of other duties in the department.

Administration costs of the plan last year were some $42, for the $12,000 fund voted to the first year's operation of the scheme.

CHINESE SENTENCED FOR THEFT OF WATCH FROM STORE WINDOW

For the theft of a wrist watch from the shop window of F. W. Francis, jeweler, Douglas and Pendergast Streets, Yin Sing, alias Ah Kay, was sentenced to one year's imprisonment by Police Magistrate George Jay in the city police court yesterday morning.

Sing was one of the six Chinese arrested in a raid by city police officers seeking opium, and, when taken in charge, he had the watch in his pocket. Mr. Francis identified the timepiece as one of six stolen from his store window on the night of October 16. The window was smashed and the watches taken. The one in the possession of Sing was the only one recovered. It was valued at $50 retail.

Sing had a record of four previous convictions, all of them for being in an opium resort and for smoking the drug.

The Life of Thomas A. Edison

By DAVID WILSON

(Copyright, 1931, by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

PART THREE

Thomas Edison at twenty was a lanky, unkempt, black-haired, preoccupied youth with a passion for studying books on electricity and a bitter dislike for any routine work which seemed useless or uninteresting.

Just as when a small boy, he refused to study subjects he did not like, so tried to evade dull jobs when he became a telegraph operator. It was this dislike of uninteresting work that drove him to his first important invention, and it was his refusal to bother with general information that kept him from profiting by it.

He was in Memphis, Tenn., working for Western Union. The Civil War was still fresh in the public mind, and the rehabilitation of the South kept telegraph wires humming. One Western Union circuit ran from New York to Memphis, another from Memphis to New Orleans. Any message from New York to New Orleans had to be received in Memphis and relayed South.

ANNNOYING WORK New York could not send directly to New Orleans then, because over such a long distance the electrical impulses grew sluggish, the dots and dashes blurred. It annoyed Edison to have to take down messages never intended for Memphis and send them on again to their destination. It annoyed every other operator, too.

But Edison set to work with a few odds and ends of wire and batteries and instruments and perfected an automatic relay to renew the impulses and send them on past a relay point as fresh and distinct as though an operator there were sending. The device is still in constant use.

It should have been worth several thousand dollars to the young man, who was earning $15 a month and spending most of it for books and laboratory equipment. But he knew nothing of patents or of the value of inventions. He donated it to the company—and a few weeks later he was discharged for joining another lively young operator in showing the rest of the office how to do a trick dance step picked up at a vaudeville show.

NATIVES DUBIOUS He went back to his father's home at Port Huron, Mich., jobless, seedy and nearly broke, and the natives found no reason to change their belief that he was not much good. He didn't mind that, but he found the town uninteresting, and soon he was off to Boston to make his real start as the wizard of two generations.

A few years ago when the Western Union main office in Boston was renovated, a curious collection of wires and tin foil strips was found in a corner of a storeroom. One old-timer who had been a boy in the office in 1868 remembered it, and under his direction it was set up.

It consisted of two strips of tin foil, tacked close together to the floor. Each was connected with a series of powerful batteries. It was Edison's first Boston invention, a device to outwit swarms of cockroaches which nightly gathered to nibble at lunches brought to the office by night-shift operators. The lunches were put inside the tin foil barricade, and all roaches which attempted to crawl across were electrocuted.

The trap was devised largely as a joke, but it worked, and it established Edison with his older colleagues as a person of ingenuity. He had found no difficulty obtaining a job with the Boston Western Union office; he was too good an operator to stay out of work. But though he was less careless about his work than with his been a few years earlier, he still gave only a small part of his attention to his job. He set up a laboratory in a small machine shop, financed out of his pay, and spent his days tinkering and his nights working. When he slept, was problematical then as later in life.

FIRST PATENT At last Edison began to think of inventions in terms of money. He devised an automatic electric voting machine for Congress and Legislatures to enable each member to cast his vote merely by turning a switch on his desk. The machine counted and listed the votes, and a roll call, instead of taking five minutes to half an hour, could be accomplished in a minute or two. This was patented October 11, 1868.

The machine worked beautifully, Edison got a leave of absence and took train for Washington with his cumbersome equipment. His baggy clothes were against him, but he won an audience with high officials and the device was installed in the first Congress.

He demonstrated it and told of its advantages with passionate argument. Edison convinced his audience too well of the machine's advantages over oral calls. It was rejected flatly. One Congressman, sensing his bewilderment, explained that a device to speed votes was the last thing any legislative body wanted; it would prevent filibusters to permit absent members to be rallied before the vote.

LEARNED LESSON Edison returned to Boston. He was twenty-one. He was broke, for all his money had gone into his vote recorder. He was too discouraged even to try to sell it to Legislatures. Only one thing saved the experience from being a total loss—it taught Edison, as he often said in later years, never to spend much time on anything that was not wanted and needed by somebody.

The boy who experimented for the sheer love of experimenting was giving way to the practical man who was to blast the theory that inventors could never profit greatly from their work.

Edison decided that as telegraphy was the thing he knew most about, that was the most practical field for experiment. He considered duplex transmission—using one wire for two messages, one in each direction, simultaneously. It was the general belief that this could never be accomplished, though it was much discussed by operators.

PERFECTED TICKER He only toyed with the idea then, though already in his mind was the solution which later was to lead him to quadruplex transmission—four messages simultaneously, two each way. Edison was distracted from perfecting even duplex transmission by an idea for a stock quotation ticker better than the crude ones in use in Boston and New York.

New York was calling him. He left Boston, with no money but his faith, by boat for New York, taking with him an idea for a ticker. This was in 1869. — now twenty-two years old, and still a hick in appearance, but he had gained confidence in himself.

(Tomorrow: How Edison capitalized the overtrained ticker service on Wall Street's black Friday, and set out on the road to wealth.)

OIL OPERATORS OPPOSE REPORT

Charges of Dictatorship by Alberta Gov't Raised by Company Heads

CALGARY, Oct. 21 (CP).—Charges of dictatorship by the oil and gas industry of Alberta, were raised tonight as independent operators scanned the final report of the technical subcommittee of the Provincial Government on pooling and conservation of gas resources.

OPPOSITION IS EVIDENT Opposition to the proposals by independent operators became evident tonight, and it is possible meetings will be held to decide action, although no definite step has been taken.

W. S. Herron, pioneer operator, voiced the opinion of several operators in saying the appointment of the technical staff and the power proposed for it would establish a "dictatorship" in the industry, even to the extent of saying where and when drilling could be undertaken.

There was preliminary discussion of the possibility of putting candidates in the field at the next election, to which the council was favorably inclined.

It was decided that a mass meeting of organized labor should be held on the first Wednesday in November in Labor Hall to discuss the whole question of unemployment.

HEAD OF POOL DIES SUDDENLY

A. J. McPhail, Prominent Grain Man, Passes Away at Regina

REGINA, Oct. 21 (CP).—Operated on two weeks ago for appendicitis and apparently well on the road to recovery, A. J. McPhail, president of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool since its inception in 1924, died suddenly early this morning when a blood clot formed in the blood stream, affecting his heart. He had been in the hospital a little less than three weeks when the end came, and his family had made preparations to receive him home tomorrow for convalescence.

The foregoing brief details were announced this morning by Dr. Hugh MacLean, of this city, who had been attending deceased since the operations.

REMAINED A FARMER Outside of his activities in connection with the Wheat Pool, little publicity came into the life of Mr. McPhail. A farmer by vocation, he stayed close to the farm all his life even when officially residing in Regina, and spent much of his time on his property at Lestock.

Born forty-seven years ago in Bruce County, Ontario, deceased came West in early boyhood with his parents to Minnedosa, Manitoba, where the family took up a farm.

PROMINENT CO-OPERATOR The late Mr. McPhail first came into prominence in connection with farmers' organizations when he was elected as a delegate and later appointed secretary of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Association. Active in the early days of organization of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, he was eventually elected its first president on its inception in 1924, a post he held until his death this morning.

He is survived by a sister and a brother in Regina; two brothers residing in Elphinstown, Sask.; his widow, formerly Miss Marion Blair, of Regina; and a young son, Kenneth, aged two.

WOMEN WORKERS ARE DISCUSSED

Trades and Labor Council Replies to Complaints—Mass Meeting Arranged

At the meeting of the Trades and Labor Council last evening replies were received to communications which had been made by the council with the City School Board and the local postmaster relative to the employment of women whose husbands were also working. Similar complaints had been made to the City Council asking that men employed on relief work be put on a five-day week with Saturday a holiday, so that they may be working on similar terms to those employed by the city.

The School Board replied that the matter had to be taken up with Hon. Joshua Hinchliffe, Minister of Education, and the postmaster that the matter had to be referred to the Postmaster-General.

A complaint was received by the council concerning the holding of stalls in the city market by women whose husbands were working outside at good salaries.

The Trades and Labor Council is communicating with the Saanich Council asking that men employed on relief work be put on a five-day week with Saturday a holiday, so that they may be working on similar terms to those employed by the city.

There was preliminary discussion of the possibility of putting candidates in the field at the next election, to which the council was favorably inclined.

It was decided that a mass meeting of organized labor should be held on the first Wednesday in November in Labor Hall to discuss the whole question of unemployment.

Just Roamin' Around

Deep Cove has no Tye Club, but that is no reason why it should not have a select fishing club—all its own.

It is more than halfway through the month of October now, and in every other part of Canada this time of year is described as the "Indian Summer." We are enjoying our Indian Summer, and last Sunday, although a bit clouded over, the sun, every once in awhile, pierced through clouds and scattered its warming rays over the dandiest of bays.

The drive out to Deep Cove was a dream of golden maple trees on all sides, with here and there the dark green of evergreens and the brown-bronze bracken where open spaces gave it a chance to flourish. A glorious drive!

Once more Rover and I were in luck, as we most often are, and with our three boon fishing companions we arrived at the Cove and embarked at once in two rowboats to spend the day trying to tickle the noses of the stacks of fish in those waters, and entice them, with the aid of sundry tasty "worms" grubbing their way in and out of the lawn of a home near North Park.

GOOD FISHING You, who are prone to think that once the Summer months are over there is no chance to spend the day out of doors till next Summer comes around, would have been surprised at the wealth of joy to be found in a rowboat on the calm seas out around the buoy that has its duties to perform just outside Deep Cove where there is still good fishing, albeit it does require as much patience as skill to land those elusive denizens of the mighty deep.

The sunset was indescribable and the reflections and lights on the bay will not soon be forgotten by two rovers.

At this time of the year it speaks well for our mild climate to be able to record that, on the grassy point that guards the entrance to Saanich Arm was more enjoyable than ever, and even at and after sunset there was no tinkle of cold or discomfort.

With an empty luncheon basket, but a full bag of fine fish, the wanderers returned to town in the gloaming, and with much thankfulness in their hearts for the privilege that is theirs of living in the best province in the Dominion and on Vancouver Island, which is undoubtedly the pick of them.

RELIEF EXPENDITURES

Candor in the matter of unemployment relief in regard to its future implications cannot be timely if facts are to be faced. At the conference of Western Premiers in Calgary the necessity of curtailing expenditures was dwelt upon by all those present. "If increased taxation is to be avoided," it is difficult to understand the meaning of the latter phrase. There will be increased taxation and it must be substantially increased if the money is to be found. British Columbia alone is embarked on extra expenditures aggregating $9,000,000 to relieve her unemployed. If her budget is to be balanced for the next fiscal year there is no escape from new taxation. It is the same with all the other provinces. The Federal Government is probably spending $100,000,000 on unemployment relief, or will have spent that amount by March 31 next. Under these circumstances, and with the prospective obligations that have been contracted, it is small wonder that a warning about outlays has come from the Federal authorities to the various Provincial Governments.

The point of highest importance is to insure that the money spent is going into productive effort. In other words, the outlays should be facilitating industrial growth, whether those outlays are for roads or in any other direction. The country wants more and larger payrolls to solve the problem of unemployment. It wants a new spirit of initiative and enterprise. It wants, as well, a spirit of industry which will make every individual sufficiently self-respecting to give the utmost value in whatever work he or she is engaged, no matter what that work may be. The duty of Governments is to direct work, when it applies to unemployment relief, into productive channels. Otherwise the outlays are a panacea and the problem for which they act as a panacea is perpetuated.

Governments are engaged on emergency programmes not in the creation of a policy that is to run through the years. Were the present policy to be perpetuated indefinitely it is doubtful if national bankruptcy could be avoided. These are plain words, but the issues of the time call for plain speaking. The unemployed are and must remain contributory factors in working out their own salvation by laying on the foundations of their present work the fabric of their permanent employment in the future.

BRITAIN AND WAR DEBTS

Since the war period Britain has exported gold to the value of $1,600,000,000 to the United States. Moreover, she has sent to that country $1,352,000,000 as instalments on her war debt. Of all debt owed to the United States, Britain's share is 41 per cent of the total. It is significant, however, that of the amount repaid since the war, Britain has been responsible for 83 per cent of the total payments to Washington.

In the matter of debts, Britain has made greater sacrifices than any other nation. She has owed $3,000,000,000 by France as a result of the war. For several years the British taxpayers paid in interest a sum of $150,000,000 annually on this amount. That a settlement was reached with France, but that settlement implies the repayment of only 40 per cent of the debt. These are the financial relationships between the countries noted. In the face of them the United States and France have accumulated some three-fifths of the world's gold holdings.

Britain has been bearing too much of the suspension of the gold standard, and in doing so she is teaching a lesson to both the United States and France. Those best informed on British finances have no fear for the future. She will weather the present financial storm as she has weathered more grievous happenings in the past. Temporarily the pound sterling is at a discount. That was an inevitable result of the suspension of the gold standard. In this connection The London Times says:

"There need be no fear that the pound, now temporarily divorced from gold, will go the way of the mark or even of the franc. We still possess unimpaired enormous inherent wealth and productive power, which after all are the only true guarantees of financial stability. And though the difficulties which still have to be faced will need cool patience and a steady head, there is no doubt whatever that the nation will remain true to its ancient tradition of prudence and integrity."

RELATED ECONOMIES

Under the stress of circumstances, and because of the findings of the Parliamentary committee which inquired into Canadian National finances, economies, some of which are long overdue, are now being put into practice in the policies of the State-owned railways. For the current fiscal year there was a vote of $50,000,000 for improvements. The expenditures involved, or at least the greater part of them, are being postponed until better times. The improvements in question related to the construction of new terminal facilities and cross-town lines and the elimination of level crossings.

Among other economies recently put into force is suspension of the construction work on the terminals at Montreal. That was the major enterprise of the C.N.R. for the current year, and, unfortunately, a good deal of money had been sunk in the grandiose scheme before the management was fully awakened to the need for retrenchment. Another economy is the cessation of the triangular service as given by C.N.R. vessels on the Pacific Coast. That service, which was in operation for a little over a year, is estimated to have inflicted a loss of nearly a million dollars. It was pointed out all along that it could not be made a paying venture in view of the adequate services already established and long maintained by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. Other economies are being practised by the nationally-owned company, but these were so long delayed that the losses sustained by the taxpayers are likely to be the heaviest since the Government took over the ownership of the amalgamated systems.

Sir Henry Thornton, the general manager of the Canadian National Railways, admits that sharply decreased net earnings will mean that during the present year there will be inability to provide little or anything towards the $37,000,000 required to meet debenture interest. In other words, the interest due to public holders of bonds must be met by the Dominion Treasury, which is tantamount to saying that it must come out of the pockets of the taxpayers. This realization adds emphasis, if any were needed, to the plea so often made in these columns that Parliament should exercise a far more rigorous control than ever in the past over the operations and policies of the Canadian National Railways. As matters stand, whatever the character of the service given by the State-owned railways and their associated interests, the success of such an experiment in public ownership must be measured on the basis of financial returns. Estimated in this way public ownership has been a failure.

RAILWAYS IN RUSSIA

In the Russia, whose efficiency Mr. George Bernard Shaw praises in hyperbolic terms, the Soviet Commissar of Land Transport has just been dismissed from office because of conditions on the railways. The railway programme lags in the Five Year Plan. There is apathy among the railwaymen and "deplorable slackness." In many places the railways are congested with loaded and empty trucks which delay traffic. There are insanitary conditions about which the Soviet Press has been complaining. The Pravda quotes an instance of where the authorities have been obliged to cancel a train "because it was so infested with bugs that even 'shock brigades' refused to travel in it." The Russia of Mr. George Bernard Shaw seems largely the creation of a distempered imagination.

To all intents and purposes, Britain is now on a tariff basis. The suspension of the gold standard has meant the equivalent of a protective duty of 20 per cent as against gold standard countries on her imports, and a "bounty" of 20 per cent on her exports to those countries. From all accounts she is enjoying the experience because of the benefits that have ensued to her trade. It has been a master stroke of policy in educating the people to the desirability of tariff reform.

The fantastic reports circulated through American news sources because of the wage disturbances in the British Navy, are illustrated by an American traveler sailing for England, who cabled to a friend: "Sailing tonight, Radio England, and I wish, if safe to land, England, and if so, whether you can still meet me." The recipient of this telegram replied: "Landing England safer than landing New York. No gangsters, no prohibition."

The Prairie Governments owe the banks $23,000,000 on account of the guarantee of Wheat Pool payments. This is to be met by the issue of 5 per cent Treasury notes. It is a heavy penalty on the taxpayers involved, and should provide an object lesson in the operations of wheat pools.

Mr. George Lansbury, a British Laborite high in the councils of his party, has reduced the goal of work to a sordid level when he says: "The end of all life is not living to work, but working to live." His conception is somewhat different to that of Thomas Carlyle, who said that "the wages of every noble work do yet lie in Heaven or else nowhere," and "all work, even cotton-spinning, is noble."

MARINER

Some seamen build a quiet house
By fields of drowsy clover,
Where sunbaked sails be carouse,
And call their voyaging over.

A garden plot, to them as wide
As all the ocean, blotting
The memory of turning tide
And long-furled canvas rotting.

But I go on, though nights be pale
With rain and winds be wailing—
There are so many seas to sail,
So little time for sailing.

—John Hanlon in The Commonweal.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

Some things are of that nature as to make one's fancy chuckle, while his heart doth ache.

—John Ruskin.

You can say anything you like and jeer as you will about the business or profession of the Kennedy-Semple-McPherson-Hutton family, but there seems to be a shrewd method in the doings of that interesting and versatile family. If ordinary people had been the principals in so many peculiar, not to say unconventional, religious and social escapades, they would have been utterly discredited, and in most cases financially ruined—at least in any other country but the United States. But the natural genius of the gifted family turned even scandal to profitable account.

When the profits of the Temple of the Angels in that centre of emotional religion and culture, Los Angeles, began to wane and something sensational had to be done to stimulate interest in the good work, Almee pulled off that kidnapping stunt, alleged that she had been carried off to the wilderness and was not seen or heard of for many days. On the reappearance of the involuntary wandering one, there was great rejoicing among the faithful and the credulous. An Omnipotent Power had intervened and restored the female evangelist to her devoted followers as apostles "as the driven snow." Something that Uncle Toby would have described as a cock-and-bull story was accepted as a miracle. It was obviously impossible to associate the name of the dramatic and magnetic Almee with such an abstract thing as a social scandal.

Whatever the escapade may have been, whether it was an advertising stunt or a scheme to obtain temporary relief from the narrow and depressing atmosphere of the holy temple, neither the scotch nor the devout believer knows. Whatever it was, it advertised and increased the fame of the genius of the temple, and Almee played the game to increasing crowds of devotees and the finances of the institution were restored to a healthy state. But an unnatural and hectic atmosphere cannot be indefinitely maintained. Something appears to have gone wrong with the temple.

Almee has changed from a state of single blessedness to a state of matrimonial bliss. Possibly the show which was so long and profitably maintained at Los Angeles had begun to lose its drawing power. So Mr. and Mrs. Hutton have dropped the curtain in the temple and gone upon tour. They have become itinerant players, conducting "one night stands" at various places, and longer stands at places where the circumstances warrant. The company played in an engagement at Boston a few days ago, under terms dictated by the Mayor of a former centre of Puritanism and present centre of light and culture. The Mayor of Boston may possibly be one of that class who have been described as sitting in the seats of the scornful. He may have believed that the mission of the touring evangelists was "to make money" as well as to save souls, or he may have believed that the good people of Boston were in no special need of salvation. At any rate, the Mayor would not permit the evangelists to attempt to save the souls of the erring people of Boston except on condition that certain portion of the proceeds of the show should be set aside for the relief of the unemployed. The conditions were that the net profits of the entertainment were to be divided in a certain proportion between the players and the poor. The gross proceeds amounted to more than twenty thousand dollars. The net profits which went to the relief of the unemployed after all salaries and expenses had been paid amounted to two or three dollars and two or three cents.

Of course that is not an unusual result when itinerant performers undertake to conduct campaigns of various kinds for the relief of the poor. It is merely another illustration of the accepted fact that when strolling philanthropists put on shows or conduct stunts or undertake any kind of stunts for benevolent purposes the benefits usually accrue entirely to the players or the promoters.

That the genius of the amiable Almee is a natural inheritance appears to be proved by the doings of "Ma Kennedy." When "Ma" was cast forth from the temple because of incompatibility of temper (which may be interpreted as a determination to be boss of the big show), she set up in the evangelist business on her own account. Whether it was because poor "Ma" was neither young nor comely nor endowed with magnetic (or drawing) powers, her rival show was not a success. In order to make the rival show a success, it was necessary to procure and advertise "added attractions." The rival show was not a success even after a partnership, sealed with the holy bonds of matrimony after sensational proceedings in the divorce courts and more sensational revelations in the newspapers had revealed somewhat scandalous complications and had provided the "added attractions." But the advertising had its effect. "Ma" and "What-a-Man" have become an "added attraction" in the "movie" upon terms which promise to be more remunerative than the collection plate, and may live happily forever after, for if there should be further matrimonial complications, they will not affect the drawing power of the versatile twain. None of the members of such a gifted family ever will be "done to death by scandalous tongues."

TRIUMPH

Triumph is not the share alone
Of him who wins acclaim,
For though through victory some are known,
Some conquests bring no fame.

Some conquerors still humbly go,
Unknown to all the world,
For then no boastful bugles blow,
No banners float unfurled.

They pass unnoticed in the crowd
Upon their way, serene;
Unheralded are they, but proud,
Amid shifting scenes.

Some triumphs must be bought
With tears,
And blood and agony,
While others, sought through lagging years,
Are gained where none may see.

Conquest may sometimes mean control
Of sea and continent;
Or it may spell the mastered soul,
Vague realm, unguessed extent.

TENTH ONTARIO BARN DESTROYED

Incendiarism Blamed for Series of Fires in Wentworth County—Farmer Shoots at Man

HAMILTON, Oct. 21 (CP).—For the tenth time within a few days, the fire fiend dealt terror in Wentworth County. Early this morning, while crowds were leaving the scene of the blaze which leveled the barn of Thomas Surtees, Greenville, another torch was kindled at West-over where buildings owned by John Berta were devoured by flames.

Berta's property is located five or six miles from the scene of the earlier blaze. Alarmed by the menacing series of fires in his area, Berta and his wife had remained up to watch their property and had armed themselves with shotguns. They remained up till 12:30 a.m., and then retired to bed.

About 1 o'clock, they were awakened by a crackling sound, and rushed out to see their barn in flames. Berta carried his shotgun with him, and saw a man running from the building. He fired instantly and saw the fugitive fall as he dived for a fence. Berta fired again and missed, and the fugitive vanished over the fence and into the darkness.

The flames had gained too great headway, and in a short time the barn, the season's crop, implements and 300 chickens and ducks were destroyed.

IS ANNOUNCED

Archdeacon A. J. V. Dewdney Purchases Estate North of Cordova Bay

Archdeacon A. J. V. Dewdney, of Calgary, has purchased the fifty acres of land and residence, formerly owned by Commander F. B. Noble, which is situated near the Bayward Farm, north of Cordova Bay.

The transfer is believed to be one of the largest consummated in recent years in Saanich. Archdeacon Dewdney arrived here yesterday to arrange for certain alterations in the home and the erection of stables for the housing of thoroughbred horses. After completing arrangements for these improvements he will leave for England on Friday to bring Mrs. Dewdney and their daughter, Miss Audrey Dewdney, to this city.

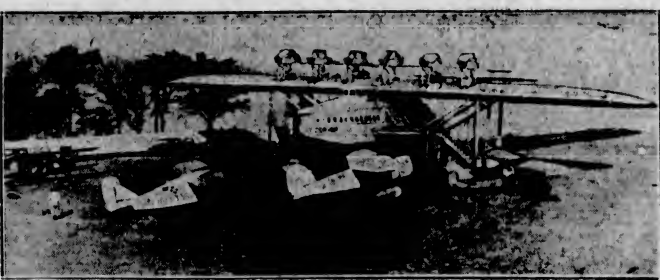

Miss Dewdney is an enthusiastic equestrian and has a valuable stable of horses in Calgary. Her mounts have won many trophies at the various horse shows in Calgary, Seattle and Portland.

Archdeacon Dewdney came out to Canada in 1908 with the intention of remaining three years in the Calgary district. He remained twenty years and was Anglican archdeacon at Red Deer and Calgary in Alberta. He was the owner of the Albion ranch of 300 acres, southwest of Calgary, with the Elbow River running through the property. This property was acquired by the City of Calgary for the building of a large reservoir to supply the Alberta city with water. Before coming to Canada, Archdeacon Dewdney had a parish at Winchmore Hill in London.

City Council Approves Programme for Improvement of Grounds by Relief

Plans of the special committee of the Victoria School Board to improve the grounds of most of the city schools under the civic unemployment programme, were given approval by the City Council at a special meeting in committee yesterday afternoon.

The programme, as outlined by members of the special committee, calls for a total expenditure of approximately $18,000, of which the school teachers, through a voluntary contribution of a portion of their salaries, will give an amount of $5,000.

AMOUNT SET ASIDE

In the civic programme of unemployment relief works, the council placed an item of $16,000 for city beautification, and it is proposed to use this amount for the improvement of the school grounds, providing the necessary financial arrangements can be made with the Government. It was explained to the members of the committee that none of the work outlined by the City Council had yet received the approval of the Provincial and Dominion Governments. The committee, however, was promised every co-operation.

NEARLY ALL LABOR

The plan as submitted by the school committee calls for extensive improvements to the Victoria High School, the Boys' and Girls' Central School, Victoria West and other schools in the city. The high school improvements will cost approximately $6,000; Boys' and Girls' Central, $5,000, and Victoria West about $2,000. All expenditures have been arranged with a view of giving the maximum amount of labor and, it was stated by the committee members that the whole of the work would require 80 per cent of labor, with the balance for materials, making a total of $18,000.

The special committee from the School Board is composed of the following: Trustees W. C. Moresby, J. L. Beckwith and Kenneth Macgibbon. Claude Campbell, Arthur T. Hunkin and Allison A. Campbell will represent the teaching staff.

HOLD DAY SHOULD BE KEPT SACRED

Veterans Voice Protest Against Commercializing the Commemoration of Armistice Day

"If there is one thing that veterans will protest with a united voice it is the exploitation of Armistice (Remembrance) Day, for personal gain," a representative of the Armistice Period-Red Cross committee informed The Colonist yesterday.

"We have just learned that a local trades union is organizing a ball for November 11. Rumor reached us yesterday, but definite proof was secured this morning. Many citizens have been approached by telephone, and their support has been solicited. The objects are declared to be commemoration of Armistice and provision of a night's work for a few men. In other words, Armistice and all that it means to the kindred of the fallen and the men who returned, is to be commercialized."

"The work is proceeding quietly, no newspaper publicity has been used, a quiet campaign of individual solicitation has been in force for the past few days and the persons canvassed are assured that high officials have been invited and their presence is expected. By working secretly the organizers evidently hoped to sell a large number of tickets before veterans' organizations learned of the move, and by using the term 'commemorative Armistice' and quoting the names of the highest officials in the province, a profitable business was anticipated. "Veterans have for years fought unceasingly to obtain recognition of November 11 as a day of sacred remembrance. The Government has responded to the united voice of Canada's veterans, and they do not intend to stand idly aside and watch anyone make use of the sacred significance of Remembrance Day for the purpose of personal gain."

OPPOSE SEWER FOR FOUL BAY

Residents of District to Meet Council to Discuss Recent Petition

Because of the apparent united opposition from residents of Foul Bay district against a proposal to install sewer connections at Foul Bay Beach, the City Council has been summoned for a special meeting, in committee, for Tuesday morning next, at 9 o'clock.

The question was raised at the special meeting of the council in committee yesterday afternoon when the city engineer intimated he desired a decision in order to start work on November 2. The work is included in the city's programme of unemployment relief and is estimated to cost $6,000.

COUNCIL TO DECIDE

Immediately following the announcement of city's programme in September, a petition opposing the plan was circulated among the residents of the district, and later presented to the council. The council passed the matter over to the zoning committee and a meeting with representatives of the residents was held, but no decision was reached, with the result that the problem comes again under council jurisdiction.

The construction of a sewer at the beach, the petitioners claim, might create a "shack town" in that vicinity, a thing the residents desire to prevent.

ZONE REGULATIONS

As in all public questions there are various angles to consider, and some of these were given to the council yesterday. It was stated yesterday afternoon that the city's zoning by-laws protect the section from the erection of shacks because that locality is zoned for a two-family district and the duplex houses must be constructed at least twenty-five feet from the street line. This, it was claimed, would entirely eliminate the possibility of "shacks" being constructed on the beach proper.

LOCAL SCHOOL LEADS CANADA

Miss Jean Brown, Dominion Junior Red Cross, Praises Esquimalt Children

Lampson Street School enjoys the distinction of having one of the best Junior Red Cross Society branches in the whole Dominion, according to Miss Jean Brown, of Toronto, Dominion director of the organization, who left for Vancouver last night after a two-day visit to the city for the special purpose of addressing the Normal School students here.

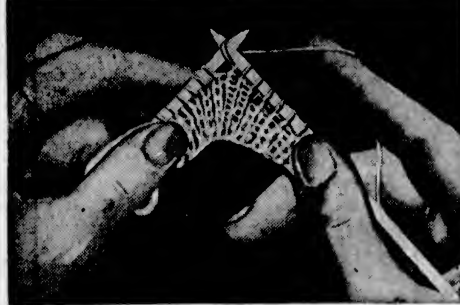

Miss Brown stated last evening that the beautiful folios made for the Junior Red Cross by the children of Lampson Street School had been sent all over the world, the last volume, containing Vancouver Island flowers, short stories about British Columbia and Victoria, and snapshots, had gone to the Isle of Man where it would be read by members of the Junior Red Cross Society there. Previous folios made and prepared by the Lampson Street School children had gone to California, Japan, South Africa, London (England) and elsewhere.

"Good work of this kind is usually attributable to the interest of the principal, teachers and school nurse of the Junior Red Cross movement," Miss Brown stated, although she added that it was considered by the Red Cross officials to be also a very direct reflection of exceptionally fine citizenship in the school.

AFTER FOUR YEARS

It is four years since Miss Brown last visited Victoria, as annual visits to European conferences of the Red Cross have left her too little time to come so far West in the intervening time. The Junior Red Cross movement is growing very rapidly, she says. In Canada alone there are now approximately 250,000 members. In the forty-eight countries of the world in which the organization has been established there is a membership of over 12,000,000 children, and the number is increasing constantly.

"BEAUTY SHOP" SCINTILLATING

Musical Comedy in Aid of Crippled Children Well Received at Initial Showing

Scintillating and humorous was the opening performance of George M. Cohan's New York musical comedy hit, "The Beauty Shop of 1931," given at the Shrine Auditorium last night in aid of the Shrine Temple Crippled Children's fund.

Three rollicking acts of mirth and music aptly describes this production, which gives plenty of scope for vocal soloists, chorus work and comedy.

The story of a beauty specialist, who is on the brink of bankruptcy and has a career fraught with matrimonial troubles, provides a vehicle for the introduction of many catchy popular songs, dances, "wise cracking" and lavish costuming.

TALENTED ARTISTS

Art Kerr, as Dr. Arbutus Budd, owner of the beauty shop, played his part to perfection and was well lacking in humor. He won particularly generous applause in a solo number in the first act, which gave him plenty of scope to reveal himself as a comedian.

J. W. Maynard, as head of a group of creditors, kept the audience in an uproar of laughter, while Mrs. Rendle, as Anna, ward of Dr. Budd, made a charming companion for Nelson Hicks, as Phil Parady, Anna's suitor. Mr. Hicks revealed splendid talent both as singer and comedian.

CHORUS WORK GOOD

To single out any one particular artist would be underselling to the entire company, which gave an excellent programme of music. The choruses were strong and no weak points were noticed. There were several clever dance numbers and the settings were well arranged.

Quick most amateur productions there was no delay in the start or between acts, and total lack of prompting indicated a strenuous series of rehearsals which was climaxed in one of the most successful amateur musical comedies shown here for some time.

There will be two more performances given, one tonight and another tomorrow night at 8:15 o'clock. Those who miss this display of local talent will be unfortunate in that they will be lacking in any department of the production.

Lecture About Island—C. L. Harrison, outgoing president of the Vancouver Island section of the Alpine Club of Canada, addressed the members of the Victoria College Literary Society at their first meeting of the year on Tuesday evening. Illustrated by an excellent series of lantern slides, the lecture indicated something of the wonderful scenic and industrial resources of the Island, showing particularly the fine stands of timber which still remain, but which are being quickly demolished. Unless measures were taken to conserve the remaining forests one of the Island's greatest scenic assets would disappear, and with the passing of the forests would come climate and geographical changes which would be regrettable, he said. Some of the fascinating Indian legends of the Island concerning place-names were recalled. Cyril Chave, the new president, presided, and the honorary president, Miss J. A. Cann, thanked the speaker.

EDISON TEST SUCCESSFUL

Experiments With Rubber Practically Complete at Time of Death

WEST ORANGE, N.J., Oct. 21 (AP)—Locked in a drawer of Thomas A. Edison's desk at his home is a small piece of vulcanized rubber that represents the successful completion of one of the last experiments in his long search for a formula for making rubber out of goldenrod.

It was brought to him less than a month ago by one of his assistants, Arthur L. Walsh, vice-president of the Edison Industries, who said it pleased him greatly.

Walsh, in a statement given out today after a conference with Charles Edison, the inventor's son, indicated that Edison's experiments in synthetic rubber had not been completed.

"WILL BE CONTINUED"

but do you know the different grades of COFFEE?

THE MATCHLESS, large, firm and meaty . . . unsurpassed for the table. The Ignotum, a marvelous tomato for canning. Every housewife knows the difference between these.

But how many housewives, no matter how experienced, can tell the different grades of coffee?

The coffee expert tells coffee as easily as you tell tomatoes. Show him some coffee beans and he will tell you at once whether they are "hard," "soft" or "mild." He will tell you, too, that mild and soft coffees are high quality, while hard is inferior and cheap.

For 50 years Chase & Sanborn experts have been selecting only the highest grades of mild and soft coffee, from the world's choicest and costliest beans . . . blending and roasting them skillfully to suit the Canadian taste.

Of course, we pack this delicious coffee in vacuum tins to keep it fresh until it reaches you. It goes to your grocer by the same delivery service that brings him fresh Fleischmann's Yeast twice each week. In 1 lb. and ½ lb. tins.

Philson and her assistants, and the tables were most charmingly arranged with pink and yellow chrysanthemums, which had been sent by Miss Agnew. The auxiliary hopes to make their "at home" an annual event each Trafalgar Day.

Weddings

COLLING-NICHOLAS

CUMBERLAND, Oct. 20.—Cumbrian United Church was the scene of a charming wedding last evening at the marriage of Elizabeth, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Nicholas, a native daughter, and Mr. Wilfred Colling, second son of Mrs. W. Colling and the late Mr. W. Colling, a native son of this city. The youthful bride was radiant in a gown of white flat crepe made on long lines, giving the model an ethereal effect. A wide Bertha collar fell over the shoulders. Her veil of silk net fell to the hem of the dress and was fastened to the head by strands of orange blossoms. She carried a lovely shower bouquet of yellow and white chrysanthemums and fern. Miss Helen Saunders, as bridesmaid, was prettily attired in pink crepe back satin, with blond picture hat. Her flowers were similar to those of the bride. Mr. B. Nicholas gave his daughter in marriage and Mr. Reginald Churchill, of Camp 3, was best man. The church was prettily decorated with flowers and during the service the bridal party stood beneath an arch of leaves in brilliant autumn tints. Mr. C. J. Parnham, at the organ, rendered nuptial music, and during the signing of the register, Mrs. F. Lowery sang "I Love You Truly." A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, when guests were immediate relatives of the principals, and a number of the younger set. The newly-weds will take up residence at Camp 3.

CAMERON-SIMPSON

The marriage took place Wednesday afternoon, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Simpson, Market Street, of their youngest daughter, Marion Elizabeth (Beth) and Mr. James Cameron, of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. G. Wilson, D.D., assisted by Rev. Bruce G. Gray, in the presence of immediate relatives. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of powder blue georgette and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Mr. and Mrs. Cameron left for a short motor trip. Mrs. Cameron travelling in a blue knitted tweed dress, navy blue tailored coat with close fitting hat to match.

QUADRA P.T.A.

St. Barnabas Church Scene Of Ceremony

In the presence of a large congregation, the wedding of Grace Elizabeth, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Renouf, 1360 Pembroke Street, and Mr. Sydney Arthur Benwell, son of Mrs. E. G. Benwell, Fernwood Road, and of Mr. Benwell, of Mount Larcom, Queensland, Australia, was solemnized last night in St. Barnabas' Church at 8 o'clock. Rev. N. E. Smith performed the ceremony, and the wedding march was played by the organist, Mr. Watson. For the occasion the church had been beautifully decorated with masses of chrysanthemums and dahlias in shades of pink, white and yellow on a background of greenery.

BRIDE AND ATTENDANTS

Given in marriage by her father, the charming bride looked beautiful in her wedding gown of white satin and lace with a lace collar. Her veil of silk net was arranged with a coronet of orange blossoms with a cluster falling over each ear, and she carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses, swansonia and bar-vada.

Miss Doris Benwell was a pretty bridesmaid in a pink tulle frock and a picture hat of mohair to match trimmed with blue. She carried a bouquet of pink snapdragons and blue delphiniums. Little Wilma Renouf, niece of the bride, was a bonny flower girl dressed in green crepe de Chine. She wore a large pink tulle bow in her hair and held a basket of mauve and pink sweet peas. Mr. Richard Benwell supported the groom and the ushers were Mr. Norman Renouf and Mr. George Benwell.

RECEPTION HELD

A largely-attended reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. The bride and groom greeted their friends standing beneath a large arch decked in ivy, white and pale yellow chrysanthemums and pink dahlias. They were assisted by Mrs. Renouf in a robe of deep delphinium blue lace and a black hat, and by Mrs. Benwell, senior, in a black lace ensemble and a close-fitting black hat. The supper table was centred with the three-tier bride cake, which was surmounted by a tiny silver bell, and arranged with silver vases of Ophelia roses and tall pink tapers in silver holders.

TO LIVE HERE

After a wedding trip to Vancouver and Powell River, Mr. and Mrs. Benwell will make their home in Victoria. For traveling, the bride donned a smart frock of nigger brown crepe de Chine and coat to one and a brown felt hat, trimmed with shrimp pink.

Among the numerous and beautiful gifts received by the popular young couple was a silver coffee service from the bride's former fel-

Tomato Juice Cocktails Are Now Popular

TORONTO, Oct. 21 (CP).—The Mail and Empire says editorially: "Cocktails are said to be invidious and dangerous, but there are cocktails and cocktails. It should be made clear that the reprehensible sort is the cocktail with a variety of fancy names and with uncertain constituents except that there is a decided kick in each and every one of them. The explanation seems necessary because we find Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, commending cocktails in an address at the Verschoyle United Church, Woodstock.

"In four places to which I journeyed recently I found tomato juice cocktails served by the ladies or others who had charge of the banquets. We recently have come to find that tomato juice is as good or better for us than orange juice.

We can grow the tomatoes right here in Ontario. Those four places which served tomato juice did just that much to increase the demand for tomatoes, and that in turn did just that much to help those who grew tomatoes here in Ontario.

"As Mr. Kennedy pointed out, lavish advertising of oranges resulted in an extraordinary sale of this foreign product. But in our Canadian tomato we have all the advantages of an orange and the additional zest of patriotism. The women in charge of the banquets tendered to the minister have set an example which deserves to be widely known. By persistently proclaiming the merits of tomato juice, based on our own experience, we all can give a helping hand to farmers and market gardeners in these days of agricultural depression."

RELIEF WORK AT STANDSTILL

Nanaimo Workers Down Tools Until Free Transportation Is Provided

NANAIMO, Oct. 21.—All men employed on public works, both civil and provincial, connected with unemployed relief programme in Nanaimo and district, laid down their tools this morning in support of district men who asked for free transportation to and from work.

Yesterday afternoon Major Swan, of Victoria, met representatives of the men, and would give no definite assurance that free transportation would be provided; but upon his return from Up-Island would give the men an answer to their request.

Following the interview, the men held a mass meeting which decided to wire both Dominion and Provincial Governments demanding free transportation, and another wire to the Provincial Government demanding the dismissal of Road Foreman James Dickinson.

TOOL BOXES LOCKED

As usual, men working in districts out of the city, started to walk to work this morning, at 8 o'clock, to where work was being done on the Island Highway south of Nanaimo. Upon arrival they found the tool boxes locked and no work for the day in sight, so they returned to the city, held a meeting on Devlin Square, and decided to call upon all men in city and districts engaged in relief undertakings to stop work in sympathy with their request for free transportation.

Following the meeting the men visited several gangs in the city, including the force engaged in the installation of the new ornamental lighting system, and induced them to lay down tools. They also marched to the vicinity of the cemetery, where a force of men were employed on improvements to the Island Highway north of the city limits, and induced this force of men to quit work. As matters stand now, all relief work is at a standstill, the men waiting word from Victoria as to what steps the Public Works Department intends to take in regard to transportation.

Col. Fallis Will Lecture Tonight At Royal Victoria

This evening at the Royal Victoria Theatre, at 8.30 o'clock, Col. Rev. G. O. Fallis will lecture on the subject, "Will Great Britain Survive?" Colonel Fallis is well known as an accomplished speaker, recently returned from a visit to Europe, and since then has given his lecture in Vancouver to an audience of two thousand people. He will speak tonight for the benefit of the Women's Work Room, which has been and is doing excellent work in the way of providing work to needy women in the city.

It is confidently expected that a full house will welcome Colonel Fallis, considering the interest of the subject chosen by so eminent a speaker and the worthy cause for which he is appearing on the lecture platform here.

Tickets may be obtained at the Royal Victoria Theatre box office all day today, or may be purchased at Fletcher Bros.

An added attraction will be the Victoria Girls' Band, which will contribute musical selection during the evening.

Madge—Well, something's different.

Sylvia—It's a new husband.

FASHION FLASHES

By ALICE ALDEN

MORE than a dash of color is apparent in many of the new frocks. Thus we have a frock with a circular skirt of black crepe and a white crepe top, using more color by having double belts, one orange and one green.

On entering the premises the police saw two men escape through a window, and though they picked up a suspect later in the night some miles from Chemainus, who also gave his address as of Vancouver, they were unable to establish identification.

"If I were you," he said, during a lull in the domestic storm, "I would have more sense."

"Of course you would," she responded agreeably.

Mrs. E. M. Cook in Painful Accident

CHEMAINUS, Oct. 21.—The many friends of Rev. and Mrs. E. M. Cook will learn with regret of a painful accident suffered by Mrs. Cook today, in which her arm was fractured at the elbow.

Mrs. Cook was visiting her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Winter Cook, at Youbou, and while walking with her grandchildren, stumbled and fell. She put out her arm to save herself, and as a result sustained a fracture at the elbow. She was admitted later to the Chemainus hospital for treatment.

ANNUAL MEETING HELD BY BRANCH

Parksville Veterans Hear Reports of Successful Year's Operations—Officers Are Elected

PARKSVILLE, October 21.—The annual meeting of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League, Mount Arrowsmith Branch, took place on Tuesday in the Parish Hall, Parksville.

There were forty-two members present, and the branch was honored by a visit of the provincial president, Comrade T. A. Barnard, and the zone representative, Comrade G. H. Barclay, and Comrade Coburn, of the Nanaimo branch.

The president of the branch, Comrade D. Maxwell, gave a brief outline of the activities during the past year, and reported a successful year's operations; during which ten new members joined up, giving the branch a present membership of 104. In concluding his report, the branch president warmly praised the president, executive and members of the ladies' auxiliary who so ably backed up the activities of the branch in every way possible and in addition raised and handed over $100 through their own social activities.

The following executives and committees were elected for the coming year: President, David Maxwell; first vice-president, J. Campbell; second vice-president, R. C. Weld; executive committee, L. Valley, J. Britton, O. Lodge, A. Rheumer, E. J. Marks, D. Mollet, assistant secretary-treasurer, W. A. Wilson; entertainment committee, A. Rheumer, C. Blenkins, A. S. Barfoot, O. Lodge, Sprinkling and J. Britton; relief committee, D. Maxwell, Rev. Mr. Arrol and W. G. Brice.

Subsequent to the election of officers, reports were tendered by the zone representative, Comrade G. H. Barclay, who gave an account of the activities of the provincial executive since last convention of the British Columbia command. This was followed by the report of the president of the British Columbia provincial command, Comrade T. A. Barnard, who gave a report on the recent convention. Previous to his address, Comrade Barnard commented on the report of the branch president, by which he was so favorably impressed that he suggested it be embodied in the minutes of the meeting for reference on a future occasion.

On the conclusion of the provincial president's address supper was served, which was supplied by the ladies' auxiliary.

The annual masquerade ball will be held as usual in the Errington War Memorial Hall, on November 11.

TWO PLEAD GUILTY TO OPIUM CHARGE

CHEMAINUS, Oct. 21.—In a raid by provincial police officers on an alleged opium resort at Chemainus, a man and a woman giving their address as of Vancouver were arrested and charged with being frequenters of an opium house.

On coming to trial in the local court they entered a plea of guilty. The man was fined $100 and costs. The woman, $50 and costs. In each case the fine was paid.

On entering the premises the police saw two men escape through a window, and though they picked up a suspect later in the night some miles from Chemainus, who also gave his address as of Vancouver, they were unable to establish identification.

"If I were you," he said, during a lull in the domestic storm, "I would have more sense."

"Of course you would," she responded agreeably.

PUPILS ENJOY THE CLASSICS

Distinguished Australian Actors Entertain Big Audience

Reassuring evidence that the "movie" and "talkie" have not spoiled the palate of the average schoolboy and schoolgirl for legitimate drama was found in the enthusiasm of the big audience of students which crowded the Victoria High School auditorium yesterday afternoon to hear the scenes from Shakespeare, Sheridan and Goldsmith plays. These were presented by Allan Wilkie, C.B.E., and his wife, Freda Wilkie, two distinguished Australian actors who arrived here a few days ago to start a world tour in this type of entertainment. Clamorous applause greeted the several presentations, and at close of the entertainment Ira Dilworth, principal of the high school, supplemented the obvious appreciation of the audience by a few words of personal appreciation and thanks.

Classical drama has two splendid propagandists in Mr. Wilkie and Miss Hunter-Watts, for, while they have the readings of the best schools, with refinement of style, polished diction, and traditionalized outlines, they are neither stilted nor coldly academic, and the lively reality of the characters kept interest yesterday at a high pitch throughout. The apparent ease with which each actor stepped with only a moment's preparation, from role to role, was evidence of versatile histrionic gift and complete familiarity with the part and the play. The absolute immersion of the actor in the player was still further demonstrated in that no attempt at cooing or slugging was attempted, the illusion of the period and character depending utterly on the capacity of the actors to give them realism.

PROLOGUE OPENS

The prologue from Shakespeare's

Henry VIII, beginning "I come no more to make you laugh," formed an appropriate introduction to the whole entertainment, spoken most eloquently and beautifully by Miss Hunter-Watts. After that they presented, in rapid sequence, the murder scene from Macbeth; a scene from "Oliver Goldsmith's" "The Stoops to Conquer;" the borrowing and trial scenes from "The Merchant of Venice;" two quartet scenes from Sheridan's "School for Scandal;" the gravedigger's scene from "Hamlet;" Jacques' soliloquy, "The Seven Ages of Man" from "As You Like It;" and the epilogue from the same play, concluding with lines which were a source of keen delight to the young audience: "If I were woman I would kiss as many of you as had beards that pleased me, complexions that liked me... and I am sure, as may as have good beards or good faces will, for my kind offer, when I make curtsy, bid me farewell." These, too, fell to Miss Hunter-Watts, a charming Rosalind.

DESCRIBES PLAYS

Mr. Wilkie's method of introducing his characters is particularly happy for student audiences, as it does not go much presuppose complete familiarity with the plays and characters. In a very few sentences he sketches the situation and describes the persons to be depicted. He himself was especially happy in characterization. His Shylock had fine definition, fawning, yet shaken with hatred of the Christian, and with occasional glimpses of ancient racial pride rising to the surface. In this scene he played the triple role of the Jew, Bosanio and Antonio. He again played a double role in the gravedigger's scene, without confusing the individualities. Miss Hunter-Watts was particularly attractive as the high-spirited, self-willed, spoiled, coquish, and altogether charming Lady Teazle.

The main floor of the auditorium was filled with high school and Victoria College students, and the gallery was crowded with groups of pupils from the private schools, St. Ann's Academy, which, through Miss Elaine Adam, president of the Academy Literary Society, presented Miss Hunter-Watts with a big bouquet of roses and snapdragons, and Mr. Wilkie with a buttonhole; St. Margaret's School, the University School, and St. Louis College, and also from Oak Bay High School and Esquimalt High School.

Alberta-British Columbia Series May Be Altered

Grid Fixture May Be Decided on Best Two Out of Three Games Instead of Sudden Death—Regina or Winnipeg to Be Scene of Finals

REGINA, Oct. 21.—Either Regina or Winnipeg, and not Calgary, will be the scene of the Western Canada senior Rugby final this Fall. A checkup on the records of the last annual meeting of the W.C.R.F.U. by President E. A. McCusker, has brought this fact to light, and the statement issued from his office on Tuesday gave the 1932 playdown final scene instead of that of 1931. In Regina, officials of the Rough Riders' club and all supporters were of the opinion that the schedule issued on Tuesday was correct and had been made under this impression since last Fall. The records prove this to be erroneous, however, for here is the three-year schedule as adopted at the meeting at Calgary last Fall:

If British Columbia stays in the union (which they have done), the playdown schedule for 1931, 1932 and 1933 will be as follows:

1931—Semi-finals, Saskatchewan at Manitoba; Alberta at British Columbia. Final, winners of West semi-final at winners of East.

1932—Semi-finals, Manitoba at Saskatchewan; British Columbia at Alberta. Final, winners of East semi-final at winners of West.

1933—Same as 1931.

B.C. AT ALBERTA

Only one change has been made in this schedule, and that is that British Columbia will visit Alberta this year, and Alberta go to the Coast the following Fall in order not to conflict with the inter-collegiate league final.

In making the announcement of the correct venue of the games, Dr. McCusker also informed the press that the Alberta-British Columbia series may be decided best two out of three games instead of a sudden-death struggle. No dates have been set for this series, but it is billed to be completed by November 7.

The final is supposed to be played on Saturday, November 14; but if satisfactory arrangements can be made between the competing teams, it may take place on Armistice Day, November 11, which is a holiday.

LEO LOMSKI TO APPEAR HERE NOV. 7

Aberdeen Heavyweight Will Fight Steve Mullins at Tiliacum Gym

BOYS WILL BATTLE OVER TEN ROUNDS

Fight fans will be given a first-class card at the Tiliacum gymnasium on Saturday, November 7, when promoter Fred Richardson will bring together Leo Lomski, of Aberdeen, and Steve Mullins, of Olympia, for a ten-round battle. The bout will be the first to be staged here for several months and a packed house is expected to be on hand. Lomski will arrive here on November 4 and Mullins the following day. They will work out at the Tiliacum gym.

Lomski for several years was one of the leading contenders for the light-heavyweight championship and during his ring career he met many of the world's top-notchers. Now he is a full-fledged heavyweight and enters the ring weighing about 180 pounds. Mullins is noted for his readiness to slug it out and he will weigh in at about 190 pounds.

OFFERED DEMPSEY BOUT

A few months ago, when Dempsey was hibernating on the Coast, Lomski was offered a bout with the ex-champion at Reno, but the Aberdeen Assassin could not go through with the bout and he lost a great chance to show his ability against the Menassa Mauler.

Lomski rose to great fame heights when Tommy Loughran was king of the light-heavyweights. The Aberdeen boy, after taking on and trimming all comers, was given a title bout with Loughran. In the first round Lomski floored Loughran but dropped a close decision after ten furious rounds.

Mullins is known as a great slugger and has a first-class ring record. He has mixed with some well-known fighters, including Pete Cerban, Armand, Emanuel, Wilder, Baker, Bono Thompson, Jack Griffiths and many others.

A good supporting card is being lined up and tickets will go on sale next Wednesday at F. B. Richardson's cigar store, Yates Street, and the Two Jacks.

Max Baer Stops Giant Portuguese In Southern Mix

OAKLAND, Oct. 21 (AP).—Max Baer, former heavyweight contender, who failed to make much of an impression on his Eastern invasion several months ago, re-established himself in favor tonight when he knocked out Jose Santa, giant Portuguese, in the last round of their scheduled ten-round bout at Oakland auditorium.

When Sharkey Started an Italian Earthquake

MONDAY night, October 12, down in Ebbett's Field, Brooklyn, Jack Sharkey spilled Primo Carnera's 262 pounds to the mat with a rip to the jaw, and, when the latter arose and then went down again without being hit, tried to claim the verdict on a technical knockout. The referee, "Gunboat" Smith, a veteran of the heavyweight ring, refused to allow the claim, but, according to the special rules of the New York Commission, resumed the count where he had left off. Carnera got up at "eight," and Sharkey, who was trying to jump out of the ring to force recognition of his claim to the award, came back and gave the Italian giant a real pasting to win the bout and re-establish himself in the eyes of the fans as a real contender for Max Schmeling's heavyweight crown. The photo reproduced above shows the vast Venetian as he crashed to the mat under Sharkey's mighty punch.

FAMOUS HORSE TRAINER DIES

James Rowe Passes Away Suddenly—Trained Great Twenty Grand

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (AP).—James Rowe, who died suddenly in Baltimore today, had visions of being a great engineer. He became a trainer of the Twenty Grand, champion three-year-old equine racing machine and leading money winner of the year.

Death of the forty-two-year-old trainer of Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable marks the passing of the last of a family of great horsemen.

His father, a famous trainer, died more than two years ago and a brother, Belmont, died in 1926.

Although reared in the atmosphere of racehorses, Rowe had intentions of becoming a mechanical engineer. He received his degree from Cornell about twenty years ago, but the call of the "blue bloods" was too great. The ink was hardly dry on his sheepskin when he was back in the stable helping to engineer track victories for the Whitney stable.

PUCK LOOP WILL OPEN NEXT MONTH

Roller Hockeyists to Start 1931-32 Season in Local League, Nov. 10

FOUR SQUADS WILL FORM SENIOR LOOP

Roller hockey, a sport which was so popular with Victorians several years ago, will make its 1931-32 debut before local fans at the Gray Line Roller Rink, Yates Street, on Tuesday, November 10, according to word received from officials of the Victoria League yesterday.

Four squads will be seen in action in the senior and intermediate leagues this season, and many close battles are expected before the respective champions are named.

The league operated last year after an absence of three seasons, and drew large crowds. This year's schedule will probably be played in two halves, with the winners of the first half meeting the second half champions for the title.

Victoria City captured the senior loop crown twelve months ago, after a great play-off with Pimley's, while the Rosebuds walked off with the intermediate honors. Jokers were declared unofficial city champions yesterday after their victory over the City in a special challenge series.

Rovers, Burnett's, Victoria City and Jokers will form the senior division this season, while the entries for the intermediate league are not yet known. Ernie Stock is again president of the league, while Ed Savannah is vice-president.

Famous The Pas Dog Derby May Be Abandoned

Winnipeg, Oct. 21 (CP).—The classic sporting event of the Far North, the annual 220-mile dog Derby between The Pas and Flin Flon may be abandoned this year, according to a special dispatch to The Free Press today.

The dispatch says owing to the depression, at least temporary abandonment of the Derby will be announced at a meeting at The Pas next month.

MAX SUTHERLAND SOLD BY ESKIMOS

Seattle Left Winger Goes to Boston Bruins—Is Fifth to Be Disposed Of

SEATTLE, Oct. 21 (AP).—Max Sutherland, left wing for the Seattle Eskimos of the Pacific Coast Hockey League last year, was sold today to the Boston Bruins of the National League. He was the fifth man to be disposed of in the general break-up of the team.

Two days ago, John Houbregs, star defenseman, was also sold to the Bruins. Three others were optioned yesterday to the Syracuse sextette of the International League.

The disbanding of the team followed differences between the club's president, Hugh M. Caldwell, and Frank Patrick, president of the league.

Young Nationalists Wins From Peters

PORTLAND, Oct. 21 (AP).—Young Nationalists, Manila, won a ten-round decision last night over Ernie Peters, Chicago, after twice dropping Peters for counts one and nine in the first round.

Nationalists weighed 120 pounds, Peters 119½.

Benny Peis, Portland, ended another scheduled ten-round bout with a sensational one-round knockout over Billy Bonillas, Watsonville, Cal. Peis rushed Bonillas, throwing hard punches to his head. Bonillas attempted to slug it out with him and Peis caught him with a fierce left hook to the mouth that dropped him for the count. Each weighed 137 pounds.

STAR U.S. ATHLETE FIGHTING FOR LIFE

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 21 (AP).—Suffering from peritonitis which followed the rupture of a gangrenous appendix, Victor Williams, one of the United States' outstanding candidates for the 1932 Olympic games, was battling for his life today. He passed "a fairly comfortable night," the hospital reported this morning.

ROBINSON SCORES

Then the Navy machine began to function in great style and Shrimpton had to move quickly to punch out a shot from Cockrill. Robinson, flashy centre half of the Navy, put his team in the lead about fifteen minutes after half time when he scored with a stinging drive into the far corner of the net from the right wing, giving Shrimpton no chance to save.

About two minutes later McDonald put the Navy two in the lead when he drove a fast one at Shrimpton, which the latter failed to hold. A minute later Shrimpton dived across his goal and punched out a hot drive from Cozier. Cockrill put the finishing touches on the scoring ten minutes later when he netted on a fine centre from Wilson.

Johnson refereed, and the teams were:

Navy—Barker, Hibbert, Johnson, Pital, Robinson, Roberts, Wilson, McDonald, Walker, Cockrill, and Cozier.

Hudson's Bay—Shrimpton, McEneaney, Oakman, Woodley, Cull, Gardner, Small, Armstrong, Fish and Newell.

SOME GOOD FOOTBALL

The fixture at the enclosure produced some fine football by both sides. At the interval the squads were deadlocked at one-all, but the sailors uncoiled pretty combination in the final stanza to down the departmentals. The Garrison-Saanich United clash was nip-and-tuck during the opening period, but a few minutes after the second half, the suburbanites quit cold as the Tommyies were running in goal after goal.

Playing on a ground which they knew every blade of grass, the Tommyies had little difficulty in trimming the United squad. During the opening exchanges, play was pretty even and both goalies showed up well under the attack. Ed Richard started things moving halfway through the half, when he beat Rowe with a hard drive from close in to give the Garrison a 1-0 lead at half-time.

GOALS COME FAST

Two minutes after play resumed, Stan Richard, former Esquimaux junior, made it 2-0 with a bullet shot from close range. Rowe made four fine saves in succession, but then on his defence crumpled, and the Garrison forward line bombarded him with shot from all angles.

In quick succession, Stan Richard and Edwards scored. Richard came back with two more goals, while Edwards added another. The former Esquimaux youngster registered his fifth tally of the game and his total to ten with two more just before time.

Hewison refereed, and the teams followed:

Garrison—Glendenning, Lindley, Buxton, McAllister, Scanlon, Henderson, Bundoek, H. Richard, S. Richard, Edwards and Forbes.

Saanich United—Rowe, Wyatt, Cann, Stonier, Love, Johnson, Brown, Ward, Moir, Speller and Tooby.

RALLY TO WIN

Three goals in the last half gave the Navy a 4-1 victory over Hudson's Bay in the feature attraction of the midweek card at Royal Athletic Park. The teams put up a fine exhibition of soccer despite the heavy wind which swept the field of play.

The first half produced some fine football by each side and play was about even. About ten minutes after the opening whistle Fish put the Bays in the lead when he drove home a lightning shot from a few feet out on a centre from Gardner. The teams battled for the next half hour on about even terms and each goalie was called on frequently.

About two minutes before half time Cockrill evened matters when he scored with a low drive after accepting a pass from Roberts.

Bays pressed hard several times after the second half opened and Newell just missed the mark with a terrific drive from right wing after a fast breakaway. Barker made a

SONNENBERG TO GRAPPLE PAT M'KAY

Former Wrestling Champion to Appear Here Saturday Evening

ROCKY BROOKS TO BATTLE H. OSWALD

Wrestling fans will get their third glimpse of Gus "Dynamite" Sonnenberg, former world's heavyweight champion, when he rings into the ring at the Tiliacum gymnasium on Saturday evening to oppose Pat McKay, of Memphis, in the eight ten-minute round event.

Rocky Brooks, Victoria, will appear in the five-round semi-wind-up against Hank Oswald, 200-pounder from Los Angeles. The usual preliminary bout between two Victoria youngsters will open the show at 8:45 o'clock.

When the former Dartmouth University football star showed here at the Armories the first time, he was world's titleholder, but since then he has been deprived of his crown by Ed "Don" George, who in turn lost the honors to Ed "Strangler" Lewis. Lewis was dethroned by Henri DeCiane, Montreal, who now lays claim to the title. Sonnenberg is a colorful grappler and is expected to draw a large crowd of local fans.

Sonnenberg's opponent is well known throughout the Northwest and should give the former champion a tough battle. McKay has appeared here several times and has made a great hit with Victorians.

The semi-wind-up is expected to be a great tussle, as Brooks and Oswald have tossed over some of the leading heavies on the Coast in recent bouts. Oswald will be making his first appearance in the local ring.

Dates for Gulf Islands Golfing Meets Announced

Play for the Gulf Islands golf championships for men and women will be held at the Salt Spring Island Club on November 7, 8 and 9. The Matson Cup will be the men's prize, while the fair six champion will receive the Carmichael Rose Bowl.

The sixteen low scores will form the championship flight in the men's event, and the low eight in the women's title group. The rest of the field will be divided into flights, while the defeated eight in the men's will form the first flight and the defeated four the women's.

Entries will close with D. K. Crofton, Ganges, at 8 p.m., November 6.

SIGNS WITH MAROONS

MONTREAL, Oct. 21.—Lorne Duguid, who jumped to the professional ranks with the Windsor Bulldogs of the International League last year, signed a contract with the Montreal Maroons of the National Hockey League, it is announced.

The 185-pound young defenceman will play with the Montreal club this winter.

Meralomas Down New Westminster In Big Four Loop

VANCOUVER, Oct. 21.—Meralomas defeated New Westminster Dodekas 8 to 1 in a Big Four Canadian Rugby game here tonight. Dodekas gave the Kilalano team some anxious moments in the final quarter when they ploughed their way down the field, only to fall short of a touchdown on two occasions.

BUYATS DEFEAT C.P.S. CAGERS IN OVERTIME

Exciting Senior 'A' Hoop Fixture Ends In 21 to 18 Score

Youthful Basketballers Down Veteran Lumbermen After Five Minutes' Overtime—Harmony and West Road Chalk Up Victories

Breaking through their opponents' defence in the overtime period for five points, Buyats scored their first victory of the senior "A" cage schedule last night at the Victoria High School gymnasium over the C.P.S. after five minutes of extra play, 21-18. West Road chalked up their second straight win in the senior "B" division by taking Normal School into camp in the opening game, 25-14, while Harmony defeated the Blue Birds in the women's fixture, 19-3.

With both quintettes holding their checks to a standstill, the C.P.S. Buyats tussle started off slowly and

Victoria High Fifteen Downs College 14-0

VICTORIA High School's first string rugby team handed Victoria College, Intermediate League, a 14-0 setback in an exhibition game played yesterday at the Victoria High School grounds. The winners displayed great form and had their opponents on the defence most of the way.

CAGERS WILL OPEN SEASON IN S.S. LOOP

Sunday School Quintettes to Usher In Year's Schedule Next Week

MANY TEAMS ENTER BOYS' DIVISIONS

Sunday school basketball quintettes will usher in their 1931-1932 schedule next week, according to programme released yesterday by officials of the league. Boys' intermediate "B" squads will open the season. A large number of teams have entered the boys' divisions, but only two squads have placed aggregations in the junior girls' division.

Christ Church Pirates, junior champions last year, have been advanced to the senior section and are expected to make a great bid for the honors. Y.M.C.A. Chinese Presbyterian, Esquimalt United and St. Aidan's are entered in the same section. Royals, last season's champs, have disbanded.

Centennial, Chinese United, Adanacs of First United and the Midgates of Lake Hill will seek the junior boys' crown. In the girls' intermediate "B" division, only one team has entered and they will be declared winners, thus earning the right to compete for the British Columbia title.

Bill Tilden and Kozeluh Capture Net Exhibitions
PARIS, Oct. 21 (AP).—Big Bill Tilden, world's professional tennis champion, easily defeated Martin Pias, French professional, in an exhibition match today. Tilden won in straight sets, 6-1, 6-3, 6-3.

In a doubles match, Tilden and Hunter defeated Kozeluh and Albert Burke, 6-3, 6-4.

COAST BASEBALL HAD FINE SEASON
LOS ANGELES, Oct. 21 (AP).—Baseball of the Pacific Coast League was one thing that wasn't hit by depression in 1931.

This year the league played to 1,637,595 paid admissions, as against 1,673,123 during 1930. The decrease of 35,528, however, was blamed on the fact that the league played twenty-eight weeks in 1930, as compared with twenty-six weeks this year. League officials said if the season had been the same length as the previous year a heavier record probably would have been established for 1931 than for 1930.

DON GEORGE PINS CHICAGO MATMAN
NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (AP).—In a wrestling match which was interrupted by a minute's silence at 10 o'clock in honor of Thomas Edison, Ed (Don) George, heavyweight grappler from North Java, N.Y., threw Dr. Fred Meyers, of Chicago, at St. Nicholas Arena tonight. George used an airplane spin and body slam to end the "mini" match in 37 minutes and 31 seconds.

George weighed 220 pounds, Meyers 211.

A rather serious misprint: The Chairman apologized for being late, and explained that he had just come from addressing a bored meeting.

TIM MATSON

Dear Doctor,

I'm in love, and as my adored is about to brave the inuendoes of the deep, by means of a long sea voyage, I am naturally very distressed. Could you, on my behalf (I'm a sheep farmer by profession), disgorge something in the way of a Lament? Some little memento she could secrete comfortably in her bosom—something with plenty of Fortissimo, and possibly a dash of Allegretto? Her name is Iodine.

Yours truly,
FRED HOPKINS.

Dear Fred,

I shall endeavor to attend to the throbbings of your soul, but first let me tell you, sheep farming is not a profession. It's a mistake. Now pay attention to the following:

CANTATA TO VANISHING LOVE
By D.D.

Farewell, my Love. The time shall creep
Like slugs, across the lawn,
As, tending to the tender sheep,
I weep and wait for thee!

Each day I'll sit and gaze and sniff
Across the swelling brine,
In hopes that I may catch a whiff
Of thee—sweet Iodine!

Be true, my Dove, as through the wet
The slough ship heaves and hurls;
Don't pally with the purser get—
(Too well he "knows his turtles"!)

Farewell, my Sweet. My heart doth hop
With emptiness and thirsting—
Thy quick return alone can stop
It prematurely bursting!

If this does not suffice, get hold of a bottle of rum and a rhyming dictionary, then stand on your head and take a crack at it yourself.

Yours intellectually,
D.D.

TIME NOT RIPE FOR BUILDING

Construction of Alaska Highway Impossible Under Present Conditions

VANCOUVER, Oct. 21 (CP).—Dominion and Provincial Governments consider construction of the British Columbia-Yukon-Alaska highway impossible at the present time, Hon. George Black, M.P. of the Yukon, speaker of the House of Commons, declared at a luncheon of the transportation bureau of Vancouver Board of Trade in Hotel Vancouver yesterday. Hon. R. B. Bennett and Hon. S. F. Tolmie have both said the project could not be financed under present depressed economic conditions, the Yukon representative asserted.

"It would doubtless be a great convenience and pleasure to a large number of people, but with times as they are, Governments must consider their funds," he said.

From a Canadian standpoint, tourist traffic over the highway would be practically the only source of revenue, declared Mr. Black, who is chairman of the Canadian-American-Alaskan Highway Commission. He said that up to the present the committee had reached no decision with regard to the road.

"We are only a fact-finding body," he explained. "It is known, however, that the highway would cost approximately $12,000,000, and that its total length from the United States border into Alaska would be in excess of 2,000 miles."

The speaker doubted if the country opened up by the road north of Hazelton would be good for farming, but thought the district should prove a good mining area.

"The highway commission will meet early next year," he said, "and by that time we will have gathered further information on the subject."

CANADIAN BUTTER GOES TO STATES
Discount of Dollar Offsets U.S. Tariff—Surplus Being Reduced by Shipments

TORONTO, Oct. 22 (Thursday).—"Despite a duty of 14 cents a pound, Canadian butter is again finding its way into the United States for the first time since 1927," says a special dispatch to The Toronto Mail and Empire from its Ottawa correspondent.

"The discount on the Canadian dollar in New York has done the trick," the dispatch continues. "There is a shortage of butter in the States and a surplus here, making United States prices appreciably higher than Canada's; but exportation has become profitable once again, since the dollar went down to an 8, 9 or 10 per cent discount across the border. Not since 1927 has such export been anything but a losing proposition."

"During the past two weeks it is estimated that more than 200,000 pounds of Canadian butter has been sold across the line, duty and all. No official figures are available yet, but last week eight carloads were sent to the New York produce market, and on Monday of this week alone, another four carloads went."

At the Playhouses

CAPITOL Ethel Griffies, well-known character player of Universal's "Waterloo Bridge," at the Capitol Theatre, has seen the day when she herself was both stage manager and "scenery shifter" of London productions. During the war, Miss Griffies made the continuation of Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson plays possible, by doing that sort of man-sized work, in addition to playing a role. It was an impressive contribution to the theatre.

DOMINION Harpo Marx, of the theatre wig and the adept fingers in harp playing, is also a champion of some kind or other. During his stage career, he is also a champion of some kind he chased many pretty girls numerous times on and off the stage during the six nights in the west and the two matinees. He has continued the practice for laugh purposes on the screen throughout "The Cocoanuts," "Animal Crackers" and the present "Monkey Business," now showing at the Dominion Theatre.

COLISEUM Who is Gypsy Rhonda? Is she the daughter of a very wealthy American who is hiding her real identity under an assumed name because her family objects to her being a stage and screen star? These are the questions repeatedly asked by the closest acquaintances and business associates of the lithe, graceful and beautiful girl who plays the role of Tondelayo in the all-talking picture, "White Cargo," which is being shown this week at the Coliseum Theatre.

LORETTA YOUNG TO SHOW AT COLISEUM

Though Loretta Young, star of First National's "Big Business Girl," came to the Coliseum Theatre, enacts the role of a modern business girl in New York, she has never visited the metropolis. In fact, she has never been east of Denver, Colorado. "Big Business Girl" was directed by William A. Seiter, while the supporting cast includes Francis X. Brannan, Ricardo Cortez, Joan Blondell, Frank Darion, Dorothy Christy, Mickey Bennett, Nancy Dover, Oscar Apfel and Virginia Sale.

FINE MYSTERY STORY AT COLUMBIA TODAY

"The Lion and the Lamb," one of the year's best selling mystery stories, has been transferred to the screen by Columbia Pictures and is scheduled to run at the Columbia Theatre for three days beginning today. This tale of the underworld was written by E. Phillips Oppenheim, foremost writer of mystery stories—an internationally known author. In bringing it to the screen, Columbia has given it the best of everything.

Mrs. Twitchtail Gets Even

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Another's fault pass lightly o'er
Lest they may even up with thee.
—Twitchtail the Squirrel.

Twitchtail the Ground Squirrel had been badly upset by a fight he had received when he had thought that Mrs. Twitchtail had been killed and carried away by an automobile as she was crossing a motor highway, and he couldn't get over it. As he followed her in quest of a new home he had a lot to say. "Why didn't you look her up, leaving that place?" he demanded. "It was just luck and nothing more that you were not killed by that monster. Even a youngster just starting out in the Great World would know enough to look this way and that way before crossing an open place like that. Certainly, you are old enough to know better. You must be crazy."

Mrs. Twitchtail said nothing. There was really nothing to say. She knew that sooner or later it had been careless and she knew it. Had she looked she would have seen that automobile coming and would have waited. She knew that even more of a fright than had Twitchtail, for the car had passed right over her, but she didn't remind Twitchtail of this. She knew that if she didn't hear him, but all the time she was having hard work to hold her temper.

"I've heard you tell the children over and over again that the price of long life is everlasting watchfulness, and that even when things seem safe there may be danger for those who are careless and fail to look and listen. Then you go do such a stupid, careless thing as this. Really, my dear, I thought better of you. I really did," continued Twitchtail.

Mrs. Twitchtail swallowed the sharp report on the tip of her tongue, and it was hard to swallow. She said nothing, merely kept on her way. "I'll get even with him yet," she thought. "I know I will, but that is no reason why he should keep rubbing the fact in. I'll get even with him yet." She was biding her time, as the saying is. She knew that sooner or later Twitchtail would do some foolish thing and then it would be her turn to say a few things.

Her chance came sooner than she dared hope it would. They had come to a rocky hillside. There were all sorts of holes and crevices among the rocks and Twitchtail became quite excited.

"We'll never find a better place for a home!" he cried as he ran about exploring the various openings.

Mrs. Twitchtail noticed that he wasn't stopping to smell at the entrance to each hole or crack in the rocks, but ran into first one and then another in the most heedless manner. However, she said nothing, but she, on her part, took care never to enter a place until her nose told her that no one else had been there lately. She was taking no chances.

Suddenly she heard a cry of fright above her, and looking up saw Twitchtail pop out of a hole in the rocks, running as she seemed to have seen him run before. His eyes looked as if they might pop right out of his head. An instant later another head appeared at the opening and the heart of Mrs. Twitchtail seemed to flop right over as she saw it. It was the head of Shadow the Weasel. No wonder that Twitchtail was so frightened that he ran right into a tree so hard that he was knocked sprawling. In a flash he had rolled over and once more was racing for his life.

Shadow the Weasel came no farther than the entrance. He grinned and then lazily yawned. He had been taking a nap when Twitchtail came blundering in, and because he had already dined heartily he was not hungry and so not inclined to give chase, which was well for Twitchtail.

When at last they were safely away from that place, Mrs. Twitchtail had her say. "Of all stupid things, you did the stupidest," said she. "You are old enough to know better than to go into any place without first making sure that no one is in there. You must be crazy. What is your nose for? Really, my dear, I thought better of you. I really did."

Twitchtail opened his mouth to say something, but thought better of it. Mrs. Twitchtail was getting even with him and there wasn't really anything to say. He had been just as careless as she had been and he knew it.

The next story: "An Unwanted Bath."

Your Health and Your Weight

DON'T CUT DOWN ON MEAT IF TRYING TO REDUCE WEIGHT

By JAS. W. BARTON, M.D.

One of the points overweight individuals fail to realize is that while a general reduction in the food intake is usually the simplest way to get rid of excess weight, nevertheless it is not really necessary to reduce the amount of meat to the same extent as the starches. By reducing all foods twenty-five to fifty per cent, including meat, many of them feel so weak, many so nearly collapse, that they get frightened and quite wisely go back to the full diet again.

Now in the majority of overweight people the meat is used up in the body processes at about the same rate as in those who are not overweight. Not so, however, with the starches, which seem to be able to do their necessary work in the body of giving heat and energy, and still have enough to be stored away as fat.

This is the reason that the reduction of starches (bread, potatoes, pastry) is the popular method of reducing weight or preventing increase in weight. Many of them have learned also that their particular tissues hold more water than the tissues of normal people, and while they continue to drink water and other liquids as often as their system seems to need them, nevertheless they drink but a small quantity at a time, and so reduce the intake of liquids by at least half.

Now this reduction of starches and liquids, if done gradually over a long period of time, will give excellent results. Not only will the weight come off, but it will come off in a safe manner. The organs of the body will lose the fat about them so slowly and so gradually that these organs will so adjust themselves to the interior of the body and to the organs that there will be no shock to the system. Further, the strength of the individual will not be so suddenly decreased that he becomes alarmed and goes back to the full diet. If, however, you find that the weight is going off so slowly that you are discouraged, don't try cutting down a little more on the starches and liquids, but actually increase the amount of meat or eggs.

If, in addition to increasing the amount of meat taken, you continue to eat the usual amount of fats—butter and cream—cutting down only on the starches, then what might be called the ideal method of reducing is under way.

Meat and eggs are body builders. Cream and butter conserve or protect the tissues. Starches are the heat and energy producers and are also the foods that put the fat on the body. Green vegetables give bulk to the meal without putting on weight and, of course, are rich in vitamins—those health-giving substances we all need so much.

But you may perhaps wonder if it would be possible to get an exact idea of how much meat, how much fat, and how much starch to eat every day to maintain your weight and yet reduce your weight.

This could be worked out very accurately for your particular body by allowing so much of meat and eggs.

That Body of Yours

TRAINING BRAIN AND BODY AT THE SAME TIME

In some cities they have what is called a vocational office in the schools whose duties is to try and guide the pupils in their choice of professions or trades. Naturally the greater part of the time is spent with the so-called difficult pupils, those pupils who do not do any too well in the regular work of the school. These students are tested in various ways as to their mental, physical and moral qualities, and after it is decided what they are best fitted for, all their studies are prescribed with this in view.

Now this is an excellent way to train youngsters for their life's work, and help them to do the thing they can do best. It means that they will be self-supporting and an asset to the community.

In England they have what is called the National Institute of Industrial Psychology, in which demonstrations are given of the ideal layout of production-planning of a factory from the mental or psychological standpoint; of the methods of increasing the output of those who are doing the same kind of work all day and every day; of research into the mental abilities and processes involved in putting together the different parts of a piece of furniture or machinery; of the effects of ventilation and lighting conditions on the worker; of the part which rhythm or music has on certain tasks, as for example, how the typist, with an uncanny number of words a minute to her credit, begins to make mistakes or goes slower when confronted with a difficult rhythm in syllables; of the tests required for telephone operators and packers, whose work demands great speed and accuracy with the hands, and finally, of the degree of difficulty in changing from one kind of work to another.

Tests for motor driving were given where the landscape and not the car moved, and everything including the traffic noise was produced. A number of case studies of high school boys were shown, giving each boy's all-round characteristics. Among cases which it had been possible to follow up after three years, it has been found that 85 per cent have justified the institute's prediction, either making good in the occupation it advised or by comparative failure in some other occupation which the institute said was unsuitable. We are surely getting somewhere when we recognize that the training of the body, together with the mind, will give each boy and girl their best chance for success.

TRAFALGAR DAY HONORED

Nelson's Victory in Cause of Freedom Recalled at Yesterday's Ceremony

From the flagstaff on the grounds of the Provincial Parliament Buildings, yesterday, there floated the white ensign of the navy, while Nelson's famous signal, "England expects every man will do his duty," was also displayed there following the ceremonies, commemorative of Trafalgar Day, which took place at 10 o'clock.

The celebration of the victory at Trafalgar was held yesterday, surrounding the flagstaff on the Parliament Grounds, under the auspices of the local branch of the Navy League of Canada and the Navy League Chapter of the I.O.D.E., with the school children from various parts of the city and from Oak Bay participating.

A detachment from the Royal Canadian Naval Barracks was present and honored the occasion of the holding of the flags. Commander Ian Agnew was in attendance, accompanied by other naval officers. C. Curtis and other members of the Navy League, as well as members of the I.O.D.E., attended. The standards of the latter body were borne by officers, adding to the patriotic effect of the celebration.

The South Park School, under the charge of Bevan Pritchard, the musical instructor, led in the singing of, in turn, "Rule Britannia," "O Canada," "God Save the King," during the progress of the exercises.

There was a detachment drawn from the Rainbow Sea Cadets present, in uniform.

SHORT ADDRESSES
Only two short addresses were delivered. Hon. J. Hinchliffe, Minister of Education, as the representative of the Government of the Province, and Mayor Herbert Anson, representing the City Council, were the speakers.

The Minister of Education conveyed the regrets of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, who was absent from the city. His Honor wrote the Navy League, wishing them every success in their work.

Another message of regret was offered by Mr. Hinchliffe. This came from Premier Tolmie, who was on his way back from Calgary, where he had been called to attend an important conference.

The minister said the celebration of Trafalgar Day had been carried out not because those who participated in that battle were braver than those who took part in many other battles of the Empire, but because it was more nearly concerned with the establishment of the rights of the people than had been many other battles.

It had been said of that time that Europe was overrun with despotism. One writer had said that the only place where freedom was to be found was in the British Empire. Trafalgar was important because it had been concerned with making the world more safe for democracy.

FIGHT FOR FREEDOM
He expressed the hope that the day was near when there would be no more war. He hoped, however, that it would never be forgotten to do honor to those who had laid down their lives in order to make the world safe for those who came after them. Long might the Navy League continue to celebrate this fight for freedom.

Mayor Anson called attention to the fact that they were there to keep alive the meaning of the action that still a century and a half after it had taken place stirred the blood of every Briton. The words of Nelson and his battle signal still thrilled them all. The men who served with Nelson on that day did their duty, and the Mayor expressed upon the young people present to follow the example.

As long as the British Nation lasted, this message of Nelson would live, said the Mayor.

What Today Means

"LIBRA"
If October 22 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:45 a.m. to 11:55 a.m., from 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. The danger hours are from noon to 2 p.m., and from 3:30 p.m. to 8:10 p.m.

October 22, speaking astrologically, will be the most propitious day of all the week. More by good luck than by management or foresight, business will prosper. The home will be free from contentions and misunderstandings. Marriages on this date will turn out extraordinarily well. Love affairs will go smoothly ahead.

A child born on this October 22 will be winsome, kind-hearted and affectionate—but secretive. It will be a loyal friend. Its intelligence will be marked, and its life will be a success, unmarred by jealousy or malice. It will possess a charming personality and always be on the level.

You, if born on October 22, have a very versatile nature. You are interested in many things and capable of doing several things well. You do not believe in putting all your eggs in one basket. You have clear judgment and careful discrimination. You take a real joy in life, and are not content to merely exist. You are a fighter, and if things do not come your way, you will power them to do so. Your mind is a keen one and you are a great reader—and a quick one.

In your horoscope, extensive travel is denoted, and it will only be later in life that you will prize the comfort and tranquility of home life. You are fond of luxury, but can do without it, and never miss it when the occasion arises. Your emotions are very strong, and you give free expression to them, regardless of convention and in spite of appearances.

You are a hard worker, and possess exceptional concentration powers. You can switch your concentration, however, from one subject to another with great facility. The one weakness in your make-up is your trustfulness. You should learn to love all, whilst trusting a few.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

by Ely Culbertson

THE USE OF PRE-EMPTIVE BIDS

Practically all hands at contract secure better results when the approach principle is used in the bidding. The approach principle, however, does not apply to hands of extremely freakish distribution containing long and powerful suits. Such hands have a minimum of defensive strength. They are best played, as a rule, with the long suit as trump, at which their attack value will be most in evidence.

This is the principle behind the use of the pre-emptive game bid at contract in the approach-forcing system. Partner can make no response that will change the fact that the hand is predominantly one-suited. Thus it has been found in actual practice that on hands of this type overbidding pays, because of the outstanding strength of other suits held by the opponents, your high bid in a suit has made it extremely difficult for them to reach their best declaration.

To some extent, bids of three in a major suit or four in a minor partake of this characteristic of the game bids. However, these bids of one below game do give promise of some defensive strength. I have placed the requirements for a major suit bid of three at a minimum of eight playing-tricks, including one and a half honor-tricks in hearts and one in spades. Thus used, such bids are game winners and point winners, but as sometimes they simply prevent partner from disclosing his hand and thus reaching the best declaration for the combined hands.

Thus, the pre-emptive game bids and the semi-pre-emptive bids of one under game have great strategic value. Such bids, it is true, preclude the free exchange of information, but they make it doubly difficult for opponents to disclose their holdings.

Neither side vulnerable.

Premier Tolmie and Hon. R. H. Pooley Address Meeting at Revelstoke

REVELSTOKE, Oct. 21.—(AP).—Premier Tolmie and Hon. R. H. Pooley, Attorney-General, arrived here today for a consideration of British Columbia's first, Canada second, and then the British Empire, and reminding his audience that the component parts of the British Empire, by courage and thrift, had come safely through depression of the past, Premier Tolmie addressed a large meeting here last night. He was assisted by Hon. R. H. Pooley, Attorney-General.

The Premier outlined the plans of unemployment relief, destined to accommodate 55,000 registered unemployed. He told of overtures made to the Federal Government for assistance in extending the P.C.E. surveys made by his Government, and scored the dilatoriness and extravagance of the previous Government in respect to this railway project, which, said the Premier, had been left on the doorstep of his administration.

OUTLINE SITUATION
He asked the audience to remember that out of every dollar collected by the Government, 84 cents has already been spent by "Pattullo and company." It was the policy of the Government to secure value for every dollar spent, to practice rigid economy, as the result of which cuts to the bone might be required in other directions. The Premier informed his hearers of the efforts of the Government to secure a market for British Columbia's exportable surplus, and the success that was meeting its labors in this respect.

He referred to the Transcanada Highway and stated that $750,000 was expended in the construction of this and other projects in the vicinity of Revelstoke. While his Government was attempting to place the man engaged in seasonal occupations on the land, he saw no merit in the back to the land movement urged by the Leader of the Opposition. "You can't put a man on the land today and expect him to feed himself on returns tomorrow," observed the Premier.

ANSWERS CRITICISMS

The Attorney-General devoted himself almost entirely to answering criticisms of the Opposition in respect to the Liquor Board. He denied a statement attributed to Mr. Pattullo that the Government had increased the staff of the Liquor Board by sixty. It had actually been reduced by thirty-one. Liquor sales were down but profits were proportionately higher, he said. By pooling freight the board was saving $15,000 a year. Breakages, as the result of close supervision, amounted to approximately $5,000, as compared to $20,850 under the previous Government. One insurance premium had been reduced from $27,000 to $12,985.

Mr. Pooley declared that it would cost $1,500,000,000 to place 52,000 unemployed on the land, figured on the basis of the cost involved in previous land schemes of the Department of Lands when Mr. Pattullo was minister.

Both the Premier and the Attorney-General, who arrived from Calgary last evening, where they attended the interprovincial conference, paid tribute to the memory of the late J. A. Buckman, member since 1916 for the adjoining riding of Columbia.

Captain James Fitzsimmons, M.P.P., Kailo-Slocan, also spoke. Mother—Tommy Wilkins is the worst boy in school, Arthur, and I want you to keep as far from him as possible. Arthur—I do, ma; he stays at the head of our class all the time!

FOR THE LEPER MISSION

Sir.—The suggestion made in your letter kindly published in your journal last April has no doubt been taken advantage of by ladies in regard to the knitting of scarves and socks and other articles to be sent to the leper mission in Korea. It is now planned to hold a shower at the Y.W.C.A. building on Thursday afternoon, October 29, at 3 o'clock, when contributions will be gladly received. The sale will then be made up to be sent in November.

The list of suggested articles, received from headquarters in London, follows: Woolen scarves, twelve inches wide, one and a half yards long, in bright colors; brightly colored handkerchiefs; chinos, sweaters, knitted woolen vests in various sizes; frocks for infants and small girls up to eight and ten years; bloomers to match; boys' shirts, open at neck, various sizes; folders containing several pockets in which lepers keep small personal articles; colored bags of print or cretonne, with drawings; unmounted Bible pictures, such as those by Harold Copping, chiefly New Testament scenes; old cotton and linen for bandages; sewing material, reels of white cotton, thimbles, needles, pins, safety pins, embroidery thread, etc.; toys, etc. (except celluloid); dolls, mousetraps, rubber balls, pencils, skipping ropes, small mirrors, bead necklaces, soap, penknives, hair ribbons, woolen socks, stockings, knee warmers, etc.

The latest report, dated June, 1931, from Rev. J. Noble Mackenzie, superintendent of the leper home and hospital in Pusan, states how the Government is for accommodation for the hundreds of lepers who are at present denied admittance to the overtaxed hospital. This indicates the pressing need of an abundance of woolen articles for distribution by the workers during the cold winter.

It is anticipated there will be a ready response, as heretofore, to this invitation to help these stricken and afflicted people.

THE POUND STERLING

Sir.—It may be of interest to you readers many of whom are greatly affected by the variations in the exchange value of British, Canadian and American currencies, to know something of the origin and meaning of the word "sterling" as applied to the British pound.

In the reign of Queen Elizabeth, German merchants established in London a business house called the Hansa Guild. Their money was of an excellent quality of gold, and, as these merchants came from the East, their golden coins became known as Easterlings, afterwards shortened to Sterling.

But, though this is generally given as the origin of the word, there are other derivations. In the reign of Henry II, 1154, there occurred an ordinance with the words: "In Anglia unus Sterlincus persolvitur" (In England let a Sterling be paid).

Through jealousy of the English merchants, the Easterlings or German merchants were driven out of London and the Hansa Guild closed. The word, however, found its way into all European languages and became a synonym for a coin of a fine quality of gold and true weight. One suggestion is that it comes from old English, "Sterling," meaning "little star."

GOLD!

Sir.—Last January you were good enough to print in your valuable paper a letter from me under the heading of "Gold and World-Wide Depression," in which I claimed that such depression was not caused, as some people then supposed, by psychological influences, but by the piling up of the world's available monetary supply of gold in the vaults of the United States and France, and a resulting scarcity elsewhere.

I pointed out that when gold gets scarce relative to the world's volume of trade, it gets dear, and everything else gets cheap, thus adding to the burdens of debtor individuals and debtor nations, who have to produce and sell more to pay a fixed debt or rate of interest. The purchasing power of all producers is curtailed, sales slow down, trade declines, business becomes demoralized and unemployment and distress general if not universal.

I had the temerity—and it required more courage than that it does now—to say that the world could not recover or times get better until something was done to make them better and to advocate the cancellation of reparations and war debts, and falling such action on the part of France and the United States, that the other powers should declare a general moratorium until times get better, and further, that these other countries should restrict their purchases from the countries named to prevent the continued drain and burial of the world's gold supply.

During the last few months the theory of psychological influences being responsible for our troubles has been knocked completely on the head by hard facts, and most financial authorities agree in substance with the ideas and conclusions which I tried to make plain last January.

During the summer a moratorium for one year has been granted to the Great War debtors, which undoubtedly will have to be extended.

or made permanent by cancellation of the debt. Great Britain has wisely departed, for some time at least, from the gold standard, and almost surely after the present elections are over will enact legislation which will lead to less buying from the United States and France and increased buying from the rest of the British Empire.

The use of silver to supplement the world's supply of money will also probably become general and will help matters.

If the United States and France could, or would, distribute some of their gold supplies to the countries that need it, by way of loans without interest, and lower their tariffs so that their people could buy more freely from other countries, the world's ill might gradually be assuaged.

At present the world is groaning under a grievous burden and the low-priced products of the world cannot be sold freely because would-be buyers are short of money. The millions of suffering humanity, the wretchedness and hopelessness of the present situation, with the definite prospect of governments in a few short months being compelled by huge deficits and vanished credit to curtail relief, all cry aloud for swift and bold measures to be taken to put an end to the causes which have heaped up gold in places where it cannot be used and drained from the countries that might make use of it.

What will history have to say of the country which nurses nearly five billion dollars worth of gold and nearly ten millions of unemployed citizens?

At such a time as this we in Canada and in our own province particularly might well ask if there is anything we can do to help solve our own difficulties. By help of the Canadian tariff, the urging of patriotic men and bodies to buy home products, the discounting of the Canadian dollar (as compared with the American), we are endeavoring to keep as much money circulating at home as possible, but other remedies must be found and tried. Some of the interest on municipal, provincial and Dominion loans, also on some industrial loans has to be paid in New York in American dollars, unduly enhanced in value as compared with ours.

Under these trying and ominous circumstances, why not make better use, rationally and nationally, of the active and dormant gold resources of this country. Canada produces annually something over $80,000,000 worth of gold, but except for the small sum collected in royalties, our various governments get nothing. Some of it goes in labor and supplies, some of it goes to pay for imported machinery, and a great deal of it goes to American shareholders. Very little of the gold stays in Canada.

I advance the suggestion, very respectfully, to the various governments of Canada and to the Government of our own province particularly, that it is time that they exploited the gold resources of this country so that the country gets the utmost possible benefit from them. To that end, why not increase the royalties on the output? If the mineowners threaten to shut down, buy them out at a fair valuation and work them under practical and competent management.

Why not send out practical prospectors and geologists to locate new properties, pay them well for their work, and undertake to give them an annual sum out of any future profits made by valuable discoveries. The development of such mines for the people by the people's Government would find employment for some of the men not now profitably employed, and in many cases result much more to the advantage of the province than the building of roads ahead of actual requirements for the pleasure mainly of joy-riders.

The gold lying dormant in our mountains, on our bench lands and in our creek beds is supposed to belong to the people of the province. Why let it stay dormant (when under present conditions it is needed so badly) until some capitalist comes to carry it away and leaves us instead merely a hole in the ground? Some of the unthinking people who think they think, but don't think in terms of national good, will doubtless say "What! Interfere with private enterprise, never!" I would reply that gold is in a class by itself. There is none other like it in the power for good or evil. It is not primarily a saleable commodity, but a buying commodity. It does not enter into competition with other commodities, but is used to facilitate the exchange and sale of other commodities. We borrow it, or the paper notes backed by it, to develop the resources of the country. We borrow too much of it and produce too little of it just now, and most of the various governments are headed for bankruptcy for lack of it. Let us produce more of it and borrow less.

DUMPLINGS MAY BE SURPRISE PACKETS AND MOST DELICIOUS

By HANNAH WING

All of us remember the thrill of apple dumplings—the mystery of the hidden fruit, the pleasing blend of the flavor of fruit, pastry, spice, sugar and cream, but now we have an infinite variety. These are the sweet dessert dumplings, dumplings to serve with meat and gay bobbling dumplings which float merrily on the soup.

Follow any good recipe for dumplings and steam or boil according to the directions—then satisfy the hankering for dumplings with any of the following varieties:

Roast pork dumplings are another type of apple dumplings that are particularly good with roast pork, roast duck or goose. Use a steamed dumpling dough made soft enough to drop from the end of a spoon and then a cupful of finely chopped apple added, with just a dash of cinnamon. Drop into the sizzling gravy in the roasting pan ten minutes before dinner time, then serve as a garnish about the meat.

Onion dumplings make a very good accompaniment to roast pork or veal. Use a recipe for steamed dumplings, and parboil a sufficient number of medium-sized onions, choosing white, milk-flavored ones. Core the onions and quarter half-way down and drop in bits of butter with salt, pepper and paprika to taste. Fold in the dough about them and bake or steam fifteen minutes.

Cheese dumplings with tomato sauce savor of the Continent as a luncheon dish. To make them, add two tablespoonfuls of grated American cheese to dumpling recipe, mixing it with dry ingredients; roll a quarter-inch thick, cut into four-inch squares, fill with an additional teaspoonful of the cheese; pinch the corners together tightly and steam over a rich tomato sauce for ten minutes. When done remove and
